

CEASE-FIRE IS PROPOSED

South Viets Make Offer

Saigon (AP) — The South Vietnamese government on Monday proposed a total cease-fire and reunification of North and South Vietnam by means of general elections.

The proposal was made in a Foreign Ministry communique marking the 17th anniversary of the 1954 Geneva Agreements that ended the French Indochina war. It divided Vietnam and also provided for reunification elections, but President Ngo Dinh Diem's government refused to comply.

The communique urged "reunification" of the two zones by means of general elections in both North and South Vietnam under international supervision.

"While waiting for reunification, the two sides can meet to explore the development of relationship between the two zones."

The Saigon regime said it "solemnly requests the North Vietnamese authorities to end their negative attitude and start immediately serious negotiations without any preconditions so that an agreement on a total cease-fire can be reached."

"In a more serene atmosphere, when the guns stop firing, the two sides will discuss the modalities of general elections under international supervision in both zones in order to realize the reunification of the country."

President Nguyen Van Thieu made a similar proposal more than two years ago in a six-point peace program, but its revival at this time was considered most significant since it coincides with other peace initiatives.

These include the seven-point package proposed by the Viet Cong at the Paris talks on July 1 and President Nixon's projected visit to Red China on what he called "a journey for peace."

Thieu's earlier proposal was made on April 7, 1969, when there were 543,400 U.S. troops in Vietnam and the level of war action was still intense. Since then, Nixon has reduced American strength in Vietnam to 236,000 men and the total will drop to 184,000 by next December.

Thieu said then that "the reunification of the two Vietnams is to be decided by the free choice of the entire population of Vietnam through democratic processes."

"To establish the atmosphere conducive to national reunification, after peace has been established, modalities of economic and cultural exchanges between North Vietnam and South Vietnam, as well as between the two Vietnams and other countries of this area, can be actively explored, altogether with other intermediary measures of peaceful coexistence so that, pending reunification, the two Vietnams can participate more fully and more constructively in the various undertakings of the international community."

MARINE CAPTAIN SAYS . . .

Flying In Angels 'Grueling Work'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Star's City Hall reporter, Tom Ekvall, is a former Navy flight training classmate of Marine Blue Angel flier Capt. Kevin O'Mara.)

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

Want to be a Blue Angel? No doubt some young lad, after witnessing the thrilling precision flying of the Navy flight demonstration team over the weekend, went home to dream of growing up to be a flier and a Blue Angel.

"It's a lot of grueling work to be a Blue Angel — but it's well worth it," remarks Marine Capt. Kevin O'Mara, who saw his first Blue Angel show 19 years ago.

Never Dreamed Of It

O'Mara, who flies the right wing position in the tight-knit diamond formation, said he was thrilled when he saw his first show but never dreamed he would one day be a Blue Angel.

Being a member of the Blue Angels, said O'Mara, "was something I never thought would be possible until after coming back" from Vietnam.

The Marine aviator, said he always wanted to fly the F-4 Phantom, adding that being a Blue Angel has been a climatic moment in his life.

'Very Gratifying'

"It's a very gratifying feeling to be chosen as a member of this very elite group," he said.

Being a Blue Angel, though, he said "represents a 24-hour-a-day commitment."

"Everything you do is as a team. You don't have much free time as off hours are few and far between," O'Mara said. "But it's worth it to be a Blue Angel."

"A lot of the work in being a Blue Angel is not in flying — a lot of it is in social commitments" in cities where the air show is put on.

O'Mara said that during summer months, he spends approximately four to five days a month at home.

The name of the game for a Blue Angel is perfection in flying the various maneuvers.

Exact Work

Each pilot must operate his jet in harmony with the others with eyes alert to make sure he is at a specific point in space at the precise moment, the Marine aviator said.

Each new maneuver is practiced "until it is done perfectly 100 times out of 100" before flown in an air show, he said.

O'Mara said that while the maneuvers to an audience may seem super spectacular, the entire show is videotaped for the pilots to watch afterwards and look for flaws.

'Shoot For Perfection'

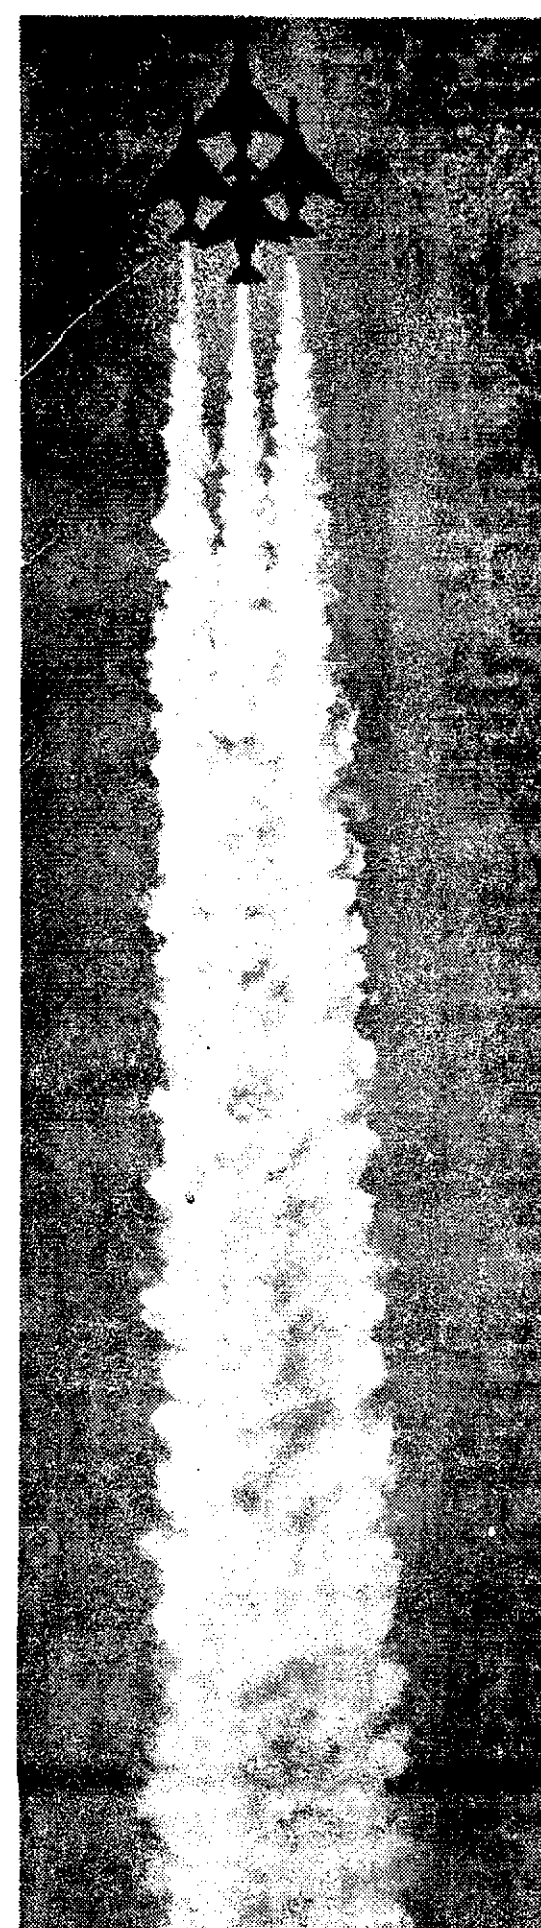

"We sit down and go over each maneuver in an attempt to shoot for perfection," he said.

The show looks a lot different from the canopy than it does on the ground, O'Mara said, adding that the main thing is to put on a smooth, thrilling show for the public.

Perfection is especially important, he said, in pointing out that in formation only one yard separates the canopy of one plane from the wing of another.

Voice calls are also worked out to perfection so that each aviator knows what the other is doing.

Leaving Lincoln, after more than 50,000 people attended the show, the Blue Angels will fly back to Pensacola, Fla., where they will enjoy their longest break this summer — three days.

McGovern Says Primaries Only Chance

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

George McGovern climbed into the breathless cabin of his twin engine charter at Norfolk's Karl Stefan Airport, doffed his coat and slipped off his shoes.

"The primaries are my only chance," the Democratic presidential aspirant said.

"I wouldn't even think of running if it were not for the primary states. My muscle is not in the backrooms with the party bosses, but with the rank and file."

49 Years Old

McGovern, the candid candidate from South Dakota, who turns 49 today, has been a member of the U.S. Senate since 1963.

This was late afternoon during the second day of his three-day campaign swing through Nebraska, his neighboring state, whose presidential primary election next May may be crucial to his presidential hopes.

"I think we would be badly hurt if we lost Nebraska," McGovern admitted as his plane swept across the rolling hills of northeast Nebraska down the Elkhorn Valley toward Omaha.

'On The Way'

On the other hand, if he can win in Nebraska and Wisconsin, "we may be on the way to the nomination," he said.

Here's how McGovern builds the scenario leading toward next summer's national convention in Miami Beach:

"That would help us build toward victories in Wisconsin, Nebraska and South Dakota. That would give us the momentum as we move on to Oregon and California.

"I think we have a good chance to carry both Oregon and California if we do well in Nebraska and Wisconsin. We would like to go west fresh from a victory here."

McGovern expects to campaign in Nebraska the way the late Robert Kennedy did in 1968. Kennedy undertook the most ambitious presidential primary campaign in Nebraska history, visiting 29 communities, and ultimately winning 86 of the 93 counties.

"I believe that Bob Kennedy demonstrated that if you get outstate, out of Omaha and Lincoln, you can do well in areas which are generally thought of as Republican."

'Candidates Welcome'

"I think Nebraskans welcome a candidate who takes his campaign into the small towns, the farms and the ranches and covers the whole state."

McGovern said he is prepared to work harder than any other candidate in Nebraska. "That's been my formula for success in South Dakota," he noted.

"I think I am capable of setting a pace which the other candidates are not likely to meet."

That means a plunge into the state about every six weeks, including a tour this fall of college campuses.

Like Kennedy

The primaries are to him what they were to John Kennedy in 1960, McGovern said.

"I don't think John Kennedy had a prayer in 1960 without the primaries. He had to demonstrate that a Catholic could win.

"Now a guy who comes from a small state without a power base, with limited resources and a quiet personality has to demonstrate to the party pro's and the delegates that you can win at the grass roots."

"Success in the primaries is central to our effort. We don't have to win them all, but I think we have to win some of them."

'Never Any Doubt'

McGovern said he "never had a n y doubt" about the significance of his neighboring state's primary. "I regard Nebraska as one of the three or four most important."

It was Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, another Nebraska neighbor, whom McGovern viewed as his chief rival in the Cornhusker State. His withdrawal represented "an enormous gain," he said.

Hughes "attracted the same support we expected to get," McGovern noted, and many Nebraska Democratic workers were "sitting on the fence" between them. "A dozen or more" of them made the move to him this weekend, McGovern said.

Strongest Rival

Now, he said, "I suppose Senator Muskie would be the strongest rival to contend with" in Nebraska.

(Earlier in the day, answering an inquiry at a farm meeting, McGovern questioned speculation that Muskie might move the party to the right.)

(But, he said, Muskie "tends to follow a consensus . . . He's more middle of the road. He tends to wait for a public consensus before he takes a position.")

Does McGovern, whose staff includes a number of former key Kennedy aides, consider himself a natural heir of Bob Kennedy's demonstrated 1968 primary constituency?

"If he were around, I think I'd be his choice. He said in 1968 he would not be a candidate if I had announced."

Latest Rail Union Demand Blasted

Washington (AP) — Railroad officials accused the United Transportation Union Sunday of new insurmountable demands in talks to settle a strike against two rail lines. The union said it is "still ready to bargain even if the carriers walk out over a minor issue."

UTU President Charles Luna said a statement by John P. Hiltz, chairman of the National Railway Labor Conference, was "a classic example of recent railroad tactics to drive all issues to Congress and to drive collective bargaining to hell."

Earlier Hiltz said: "The UTU demanded that there be included in any settlement of the present dispute a provision which would provide all UTU members be paid and treated as though the rules which were promulgated by the carriers following the July 16 whip saw strike against the Southern Railway and the Union Pacific Railroad had never been put into effect."

"We are not asking the striking members to be paid," Luna said in a statement released in Dallas. "We ask only that those who worked under intolerable conditions imposed unilaterally be paid under implementing agreements."

"Why the gag over a gnat when elephants are stampeding, whom such a program was intended.

He noted that the food needs of these people do not change even though their income changes and that the former plan did not allow for this need.

An example of the change resulting from the new plan, in March, 1970 — the first month of its implementation — participants spent $27,657.35 and received $55,732 worth of stamps, while in December, 1969, under the former plan, only $32,223 worth were purchased for an expenditure of $23,028.50.

Dollar Value Of Food Stamp Plan Up 452% In County

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The dollar value of food stamps issued in Lancaster County has increased 452% since the program's inception in the county six years ago.

According to figures released from the Lancaster County Welfare office, the total amount of food stamps issued for the 1970-71 fiscal year was $1,130,235, as compared with $252,142 worth issued for the 1965-66 fiscal year.

During the last year an average of 3,811 persons participated in the program each month and spent $562,737.20 to receive the more than $1 million worth of food stamps with a bonus of $567,497.80.

Because of a change in the program in March, 1970, participants were enabled to receive more stamps for the amount they spent resulting in a substantial increase in the number of food stamps issued during the 1970-71 fiscal year as compared with the 1969-70 and previous years.

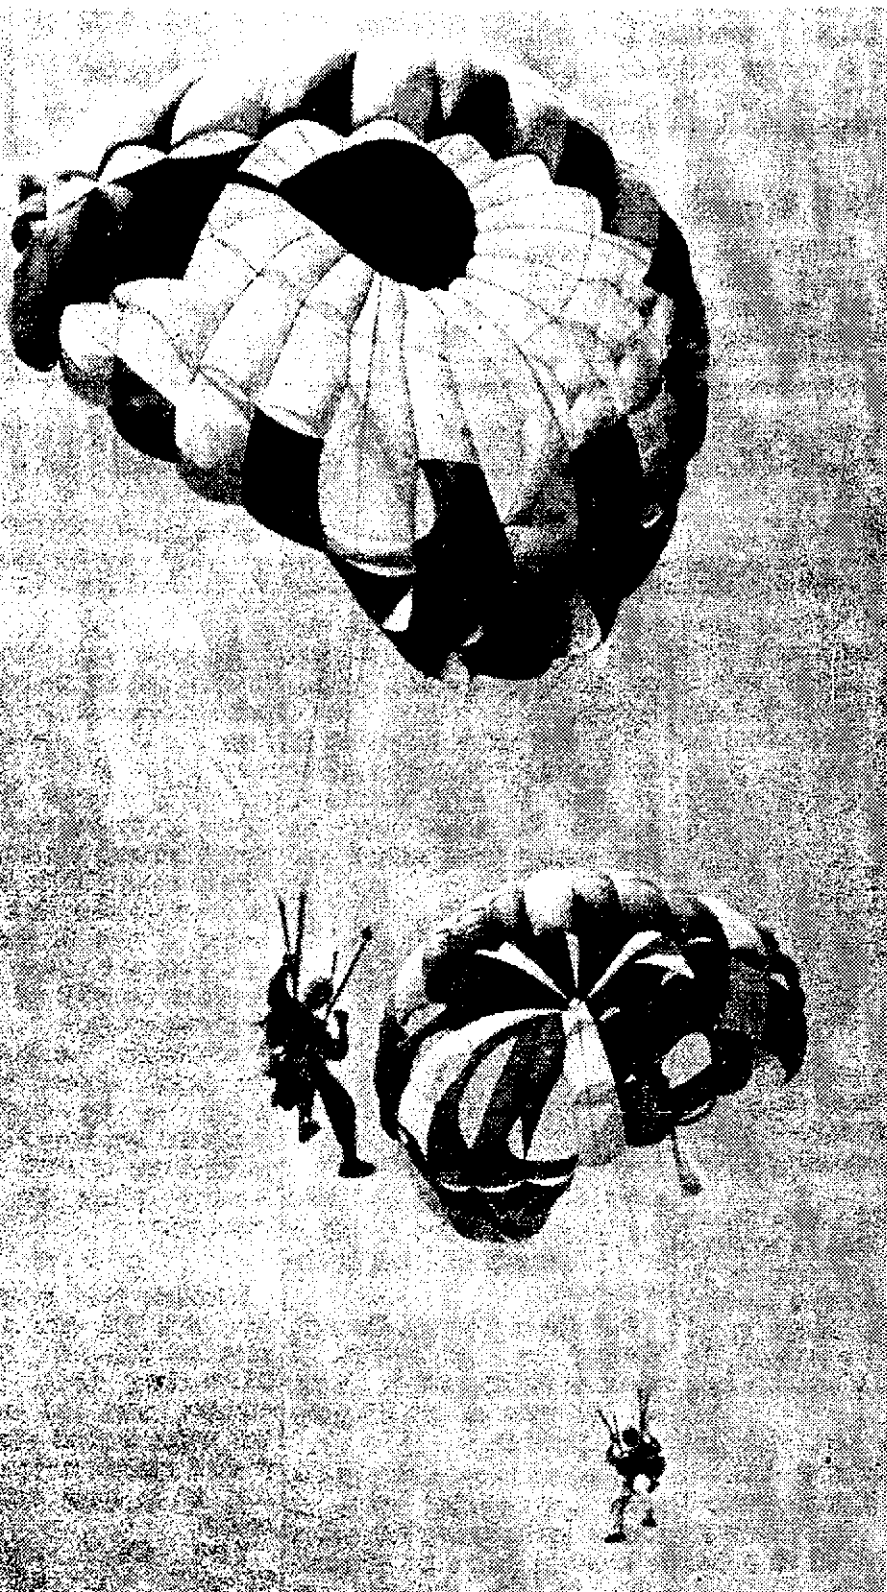

The amount issued more than doubled the previous year when $540,778 worth of stamps were issued, and the figure which included more than three months under the new program was substantially higher than previous years when the figures for the year ranged between $320,000 and $350,000.

Under the new allotment plan, participants receive more food stamps for the amount of their investment and if a family's adjusted net income changes the stamp or total coupon allotment doesn't change.

Under the new plan, a family of four would receive the same number of food stamps regardless of a change upward or downward in net income. If the adjusted net income increases, the family would pay more for their stamp allotment, while if it should decrease, it would pay less.

At the time the plan went into effect, Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert said that the new plan definitely would benefit the people for

Jordanian Crackdown Stirs Arab Discontent

By The Associated Press

Iraq, angered by the Jordanian army's bloody crackdown on Palestinian guerrillas, severed relations with Jordan Sunday.

Sudan denounced Jordan's King Hussein and a Cairo newspaper accused Hussein of being "an obedient tool" for Israel.

In Jordan, the king's tough Bedouin troops were mopping up small bands of guerrillas after six days of fighting and forcing the survivors to new bases near the Israeli cease-fire line. At least 50 guerrillas fled into Israel and surrendered.

A communique broadcast by Baghdad radio said Iraq was breaking relations with Jordan and would close its 100-mile border with Hussein's kingdom and bar Jordanian airplanes from flying over Iraq. The broadcast, monitored in Jerusalem, also advised Hussein to recall immediately his ambassador to Baghdad.

Iraq and Sudan appealed to other Arab nations to isolate Jordan, but there was no official statement from Egypt, where President Anwar Sadat has been trying to mediate the Jordanian conflict and avoid a further division in Arab ranks.

Cairo's semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram called Hussein "an obedient tool for and conspirator with the imperialist Israeli design in the Mideast," but Cairo radio made no mention of Iraq's action against Jordan.

Iraq is the second government to repute relations with Jordan. Libya recalled its diplomatic staff at the height of Jordan's civil war last September — a war that apparently convinced Hussein he had to control the guerrillas operating in Jordan or be overthrown.

Hussein's government, apparently confident that it had finally won control, announced Sunday that it would no longer recognize the Cairo agreement, which had been worked out by Arab mediators during the September fighting.

A Jordanian army spokesman said Sunday that soldiers had pinned down the battered remnants of guerrilla bands in northern Jordan. At least 50 battle-weary guerrillas crossed into Israel and surrendered.

The Jordanian spokesman said the surrendering guerrillas were Israeli-trained infiltrators returning "to their masters." A guerrilla official in Beirut confirmed that some 50 commandos had crossed the Jordan river into Israel. He said they were forced to do so because of the large number of wounded, a lack of water and incessant shelling by the Jordanian army.

The army spokesman said about 100 soldiers had been killed or wounded in six days of fighting with the guerrillas. He estimated guerrilla losses at more than 200.

Scott Sees Full Combat Pullout By May 1972

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — President Nixon's acceptance of next May as the latest date for his visit to Peking indicates that there will be no American combat troops left in Vietnam by that time, Hugh Scott, the Senate Republican leader, said on a television interview show. He added that he expected Nixon to tell a meeting of congressional leaders Monday that he would not "betray Taiwan and that Soviet leaders are being fully informed of United States intentions. Illiteracy High In South

Atlanta — Nearly one million people in a dozen Southern states are still completely illiterate, the latest Census Bureau and Office of Education statistics were said to indicate. The statistics showed that illiteracy declined significantly in other sections of the nation during the last 10 years but was thriving in the South.

Iraq Cuts Jordan Ties

Fara, Jordan — As scores of Palestinian guerrillas crossed the Jordan River, apparently fleeing from a Jordanian army campaign against them, Iraq severed diplomatic relations with Jordan and closed the frontier between the countries. Iraq cited Jordan's renunciation of the Cairo agreement governing relations between Amman and the guerrillas. Jordan charged that some of the fleeing guerrillas, who were taken into custody by Israeli troops, were in fact Israeli agents. (More on Page 1.)

Peking, Britain Negotiating

Peking — Premier Chou En-Lai of China said in Peking that his country and Britain were currently discussing the possibility of raising their diplomatic relations, which have been at the charge d'affaires level since 1950, to the full ambassadorial level.

Viet Elections Said Rigged

Saigon — More than 300 supporters of a major candidate for the presidency, Gen. Duong Van Minh, met in Saigon to denounce President Nguyen Van Thieu, to charge that elections in South Vietnam are rigged and to accuse the United States of interference in South Vietnamese politics.

Coney Island Still Closed

New York — Despite an early-morning recommendation by Mayor John V. Lindsay and other officials that the beaches at Coney Island be reopened for swimming, Mary C. McLaughlin, the city's health commissioner, decided after an unannounced walk along the entire beachfront affected by washed-up oil that they would be closed for a third consecutive day.

East Village Bars Raided

New York — Nine after-hour bars, most of them in Greenwich Village, were closed in a coordinated predawn raid by a strike force of federal and city law-enforcement officers. Officials, asserting that the illegal bars were a lucrative source of income for the Mafia, impounded all of their liquor and furniture to keep them from reopening.

Wheat Crop Is Good But Is It OK In Bread?

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Nebraska's record wheat crop is on its way to the flour mills of the world. While the wheat crop is an excellent one from the yield standpoint, just how good is the wheat for making bread?

A little known testing program designed to evaluate the wheat crop from the quality standpoint is being conducted by the Wheat Division of the State Department of Agriculture, the University of Nebraska and the state-federal statistical reporting service.

The statistical services gather the wheat samples as a part of their procedures of estimating the 1971 wheat crop. The samples are then threshed and sent to the University of Nebraska wheat laboratory.

The samples are first carefully mixed with water to have each sample containing exactly the same amount of moisture.

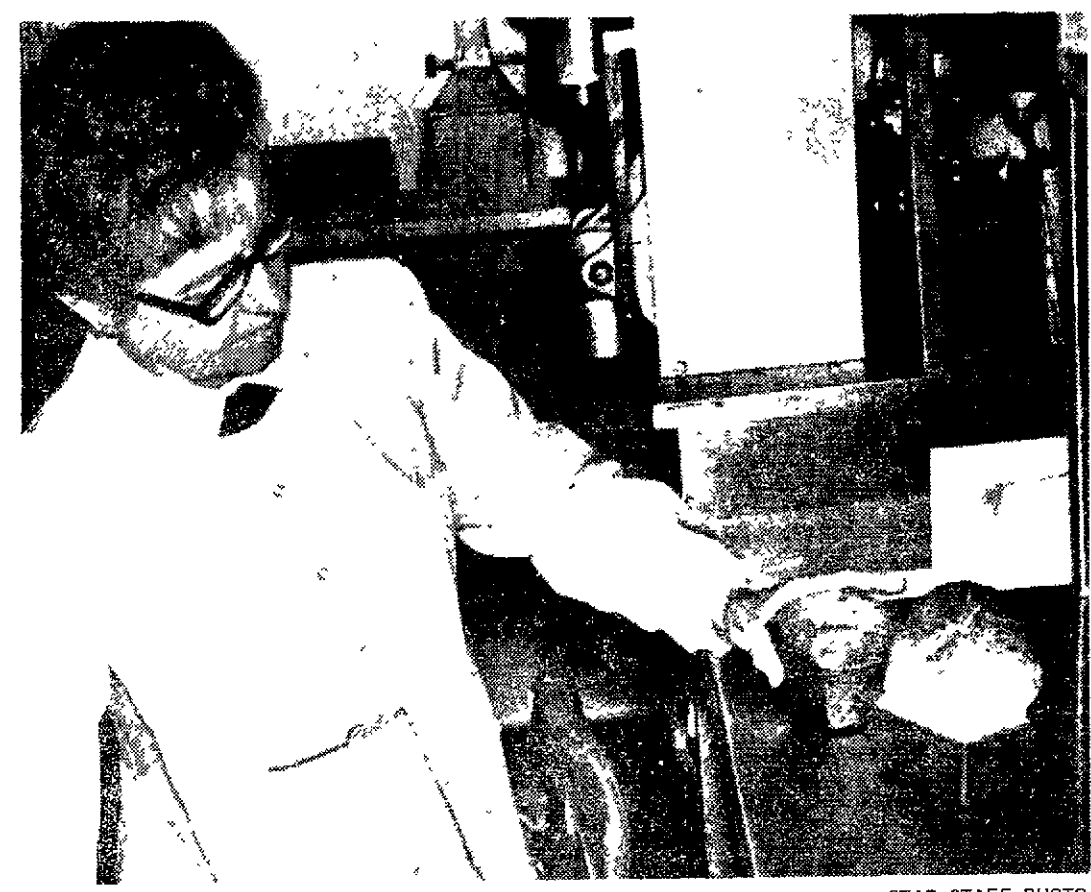

Sample Tested

A small sample of the wheat is ground for testing in the lab. Tests are run on the protein content, gluten content and a test of mixing quality called the mixing curve test.

"We treat each sample exactly the same way so the differences we find are in the wheat, not in the procedures we use," explains Anne Farmer, a lab technician.

Once the tests are run, a larger sample is ground into flour in a miniature model of a large flour mill for the bread test by Jim Bishop, milling technician.

The samples are then made into bread dough in a scale model mixing machine similar to the ones used in a modern bakery. The dough is baked in a small bread pan similar to

Spaceport Could Be In Nebraska

It is still possible that a huge space shuttle complex could be located in Nebraska, according to space agency representatives who spoke in Lincoln.

Jerry Gaffney, coordinator for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) space shuttle site selection group, said, "If Nebraska didn't have a chance, we wouldn't be here."

Gaffney was speaking at a meeting hosted by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

15 Cities Interested

Gaffney said there are 15 cities in Nebraska that have expressed interest in having the complex located near them.

He noted that a NASA-Defense Department board will decide sometime in October where the space site will be located.

The NASA official said the board is considering some 70 possible locations for the site, which would be a launch and landing port for the next phase of NASA's space program.

Change Discussed

Gaffney said, however, that there is some talk about changing the proposed space program so that an expendable booster will be used. He indicated that this change in the program might alter or eliminate the need for a new space shuttle site.

The program as it is now planned calls for a recoverable two-stage space vehicle. The larger stage, the size of a Boeing 747 jet, is the booster which would lift the other stage near orbit and then return to earth to be refueled and reused.

The second stage, the size of a Boeing 707, would perform its space mission and then return to the landing facility for reuse.

Gaffney said the site selection team has visited many of the possible sites to inform the local citizens about the planned shuttle complex.

Spotlight on Agriculture

Farmers are looking over their wheat checks and their farm payment checks with a fair amount of satisfaction but they are still worrying about too much corn and the corn blight.

The government crop report on July 9 chicken out on a bushel estimate but the acreage that they expect to be harvested this fall in corn and milo could lead to grain piles on the ground and generally depressed prices at harvest time—possibly for the next year.

The Burlington crop report has historically been an accurate one. Prepared for use by its executives in decision making as related to agriculture in the area served by the railroad, the report indicates a sizeable crop this fall.

So large in fact that the railroad is ordering an additional 500 jumbo covered hopper cars for delivery beginning August 1st at a cost of nearly $8 million.

Barring the blight or drought or whatever else might hit the corn crop we now expect a 14% increase in harvested acreage in corn this fall.

Sorghum acreage is up a whopping 34% and that crop is not endangered by the blight. Better sweep out the grain bin, mother. I think we are going to need all the storage we can get.

Many local elevators are putting in dryers, faster unloading equipment and a few are constructing additional storage facilities.

What will happen to feed grain prices this fall is still purely speculation, however, one factor will be the amount of wheat fed to livestock. Nobody really knows how much wheat is going into meat instead of bread but it is a considerable amount. The National Grain and Feed Association says it could go as high as 235 million bushels.

With the green revolution in the lesser developed countries we may have to find new markets for wheat via the grain-eating meat animal and grain alcohol. When you take the booze out, there is still a lot of livestock feed left in the product.

With the new wheat, Centurk, yielding over 80 bushels of wheat in Nebraska it is clearly not too soon to act promptly on the problem.

More and more people in the world are seeking ways to control agriculture's production in order to insure an adequate price to the producer. As ridiculous as it seems with starvation in India and many other areas and some Americans on an inadequate diet they are trying to limit production just above enough.

Governor Exon in a visit with some Farm Bureau members has indicated that he would rather see farmers licensed than disenfranchised.

The Senate is considering a pair of agricultural bargaining bills that would require a farmer to join a bargaining association in order to market his produce.

Some dairy co-ops are limiting the number of grade A members they will accept at the present time.

Personally I don't believe farmers are really ready for this kind of an approach. If it is actually developed to the point of a law there will be challenges in the courts for several years.

As distasteful as it may be to the lover of free enterprise, there are long standing precedents for such action. Skilled tradesmen in Europe have long limited membership in their unions and the same thing has been done in the United States. The union man with seniority gets first crack at the better job.

Farming will be a lot harder to regulate due to diseases and weather limitations on production but with the terrifying possibility of national starvation on the horizon even with a national food reserve, it probably can be done and at some unknown time in the future it will be done.

The battle against hog cholera is still making progress with just 26 outbreaks involving 8,446 hogs this April. African swine fever is now in Cuba, however, and VEE, a dread disease of horses is affecting thousands of horses in Texas and Mexico.

People who fail to contact a veterinarian when they have an animal disease on their place can endanger the nation's livestock industry as well as their own health.

Incidentally, the increase of the horse disease which is known to be carried by mosquitos has been blamed on reduced use of DDT in South America where the disease came from.

Scientists have known for a long time that common plants such as poinsettia, mistletoe, bleeding heart, rhubarb, cherries, oaks and buttercups can cause serious illness and death if specific parts are eaten raw, or in some cases, even cooked.

The Geigy Agricultural Chemical Co., will make available a poster and booklet listing many of the dangerous plants to anyone who wants them. They are particularly valuable to teachers, FFA and 4-H advisors, and ecologists.

Just write to Corporate Communications, 5300 Edina Industrial Blvd., Minneapolis, Minn. 55435. Ask for the "Plants that Poison" booklet and chart. They are free and could possibly save a child's life.

Nye, WWII Senate Dove, Dies In Washington At 78

Washington (AP) — Former Sen. Gerald P. Nye, R-N.D., one of the Senate's most vigorous opponents of America's entry into World War II, died Saturday. He was 78.

Nye had been living in Chevy Chase, Md. since he left the Senate in 1944. His most recent activity was as a staff member of a special Senate committee on aging, a post he held until about four years ago.

Death came in Georgetown University hospital, after a long illness. A native of Hortonville, Wis., Nye was a country newspaper editor in Cooperstown, N.D., when he was appointed to the Senate in 1925.

A few weeks before the Japanese sneak attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, Nye urged the Senate to instruct President Franklin D. Roosevelt to seek a negotiated peace in Europe.

Nye responded to the attack on Pearl Harbor by saying "we have been maneuvered into this by the President." But he voted for the declaration of war the next day.

Nye was defeated in his bid for re-election in 1944 and failed in an attempt to regain his former Senate seat after his successor, Democrat John Moses, died two years later.

He leaves a wife, two daughters and three sons.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at the Grace Lutheran church. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln cemetery here.

Passengers Pay To Land Plane

Colombo, Ceylon (AP) — A Royal Jordanian Airways crew passed the hat around to passengers on a flight from Melbourne, Australia, to Amman, Jordan, and collected $351 for airport handling charges.

Colombo authorities refused flight clearance Friday to the Jordanian airliner until a $650 handling charge was paid to Air Ceylon. The aircraft crew came up with $299 among themselves and got the rest by passing the hat among the passengers.

Explosion Hits Puget Sound Courthouse

Vashon, Wash. (UPI) — An explosion of unknown origin ripped through a judge's chambers Sunday and the ensuing fire demolished the district courthouse.

No one was injured. The structure, which also contained insurance offices was valued at $30,000.

A spokesman for Puget Sound Power and Light said the explosion went off in the chambers and knocked out the main power cable to the community on Vashon Island, located in South Puget Sound.

Telephone service also was severed for several hours and a Seattle radio station, KVI, which has towers on the island, was knocked off the air for about 45 minutes.

The fire's glow was seen by many residents in the Puget Sound region and was especially vivid in Seattle, about 20 miles away.

Chile-Cuba Air Service Begins

Miami (AP) — Airline service between Chile and Cuba began Sunday with the arrival in Havana of a Boeing 707 jetliner belonging to LAN-Chile, the South American country's national airline.

A Radio Havana broadcast monitored here indicated the flight is a newly instituted stopover on LAN-Chile's Santiago-to-Madrid route.

The Santiago-Havana air link is Cuba's second in the Americas. The Cuban airline operates a twice-weekly service to Mexico.

Six-Hour Torrent In Korea Kills 45

Seoul (AP) — The death toll from a torrential rainfall in the Seoul area has risen to 45, South Korea's disaster relief center reported Sunday.

It said that eight persons were missing, 43 others injured and 3,424 people made homeless by landslides and flooding rivers resulting from the six-hour downpour Saturday. The rain measured seven inches in the capital, which was worst hit.

Officials estimated damages at nearly $1 million.

Does More Than Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Infection

(Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Pain and Itching in Such Tissues.)

When hemorrhoidal tissues swell, become inflamed and infected—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But doctors have found a remarkably successful medication which is so effective that it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues. And it does more. In many cases, it also gives prompt relief for hours from the pain and itching in hemorrhoidal tissues. This medication is obtainable without a prescription under the name—Preparation H®.

Tests by leading doctors on hundreds of patients in New York, Washington, D.C. and at a large medical center verified Preparation H gave similar successful results in many cases.

When you consider Preparation H offers so many benefits—it's no wonder millions of sufferers buy it each year to obtain this relief. See if it doesn't help you.

There's no other formula like Preparation H. Ointment or suppositories.

Wheat Crop Is Good But Is It OK In Bread?

By DOMINICK COSTELLO Farm Editor

Nebraska's record wheat crop is on its way to the flour mills of the world. While the wheat crop is an excellent one from the yield standpoint, just how good is the wheat for making bread?

A little known testing program designed to evaluate the wheat crop from the quality standpoint is being conducted by the Wheat Division, of the State Department of Agriculture, the University of Nebraska and the state-federal statistical reporting service.

The statistical services gather the wheat samples as a part of their procedures of estimating the 1971 wheat crop. The samples are then threshed and sent to the University of Nebraska wheat laboratory.

The samples are first carefully mixed with water to have each sample containing exactly the same amount of moisture.

Sample Tested

A small sample of the wheat is ground for testing in the lab. Tests are run on the protein content, gluten content and a test of mixing quality called the mixing curve test.

"We treat each sample exactly the same way so the differences we find are in the wheat, not in the procedures we use," explains Anne Farmer, a lab technician.

Once the tests are run, a larger sample is ground into flour in a miniature model of a large flour mill for the bread test by Jim Bishop, milling technician.

The samples are then made into bread dough in a scale model mixing machine similar to the ones used in a modern bakery. The dough is baked in a small bread pan similar to the ones used by housewives in making homemade bread.

The data is compiled from the various tests and put into an annual report. The report includes data on the variety of wheat, where it is grown and the quality of bread you can expect to get.

Most Flour Is Blend

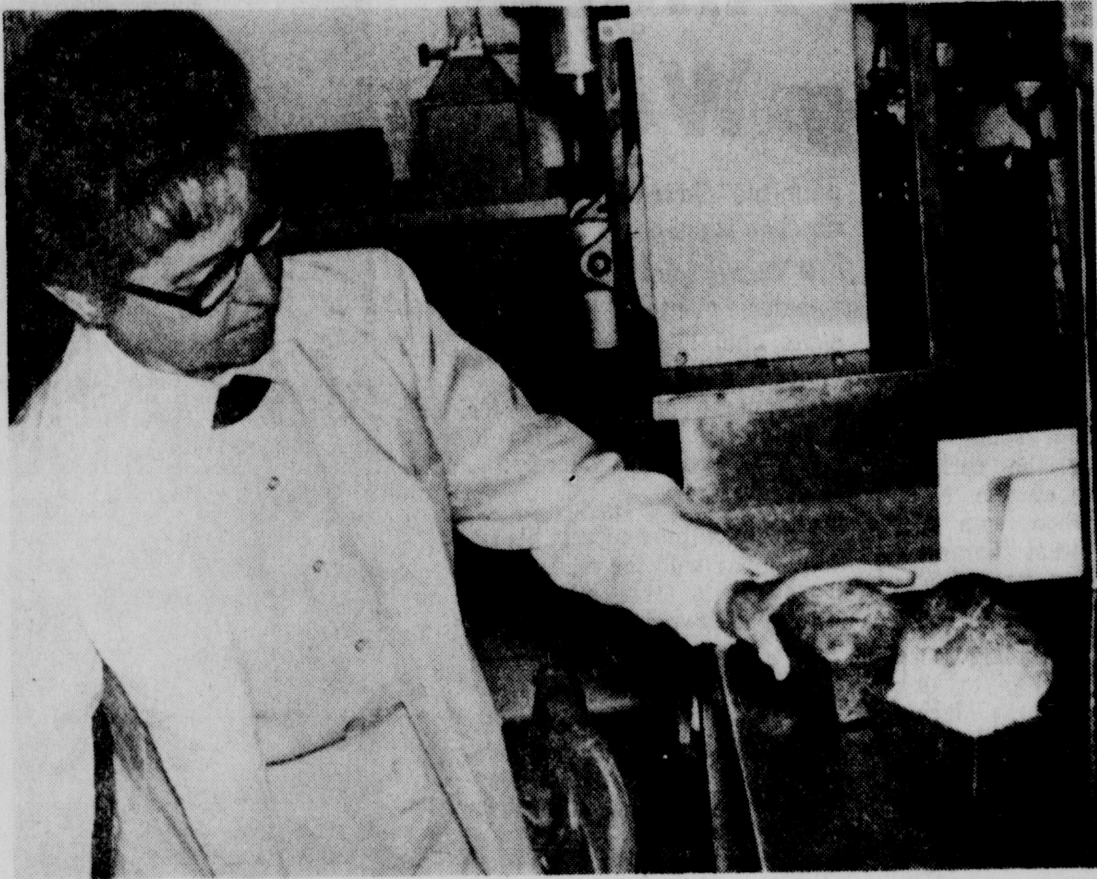

Most of the flour used in baking is a blend of several wheats in an effort to arrive at the mixing quality required for bread, pastry, or special purpose flours such as cake flour.

Nebraska-grown hard red winter wheats are in worldwide demand for blending with native soft wheats to improve the bread making quality of the flour produced in Europe and the Far East.

Data on baking quality of varieties of wheat from the international wheat nursery growing at the University of Nebraska field lab at Mead are also reported in the booklet.

Information from the tests play an important role in the development of new varieties of wheat, in blending existing varieties for better flour and in setting the price premium of wheat grown in the state. Quality factors differ in the same variety grown in different areas of the state.

Data gathered by the statistical reporting service on the date of planting, amount of fertilizer and kinds of fertilizer along with the crop history of the fields are all factors that can have an effect on the quality of the wheat. When all these factors are compared, some statistically reliable data should provide information that will help improve the quality of Nebraska's big cash crop: wheat.

ANNE FARMER . . . shows difference wheat varieties make.

Spaceport Could Be In Nebraska

It is still possible that a huge space shuttle complex could be located in Nebraska, according to space agency representatives who spoke in Lincoln.

Jerry Gaffney, coordinator for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) space shuttle site selection group, said, "If Nebraska didn't have a chance, we wouldn't be here."

Gaffney was speaking at a

Persons attending the meeting included representatives from Lincoln, Omaha, Grand Island, Columbus, Scottsbluff, Broken Bow, Alliance and York.

15 Cities Interested

Gaffney said there are 15 cities in Nebraska that have expressed interest in having the complex located near them.

He noted that a NASA-Defense Department board will decide sometime in October where the space site will be located.

The NASA official said the board is considering some 70 possible locations for the site, which would be a launch and landing port for the next phase of NASA's space program.

Change Discussed

Gaffney said, however, that there is some talk about changing the proposed space program so that an expendable booster will be used. He indicated that this change in the program might alter or eliminate the need for a new space shuttle site.

The program as it is now planned calls for a recoverable two-stage space vehicle. The larger stage, the size of a Boeing 747 jet, is the booster which would lift the other stage near orbit and then return to earth to be refueled and reused.

The second stage, the size of a Boeing 707, would perform its space mission and then return to the landing facility for reuse.

Gaffney said the site selection team has visited many of the possible sites to inform the local citizens about the planned shuttle complex.

Many Criteria

He and several other space experts at the meeting said in many criteria including available land, transportation, supply of skilled technicians, nearby recreation and education facilities, fuel resources and weather will be used in choosing the site.

The experts indicated that Nebraska seems to be in a favorable position in at least several of the criteria areas.

Gaffney said the complex, which would require 50,000 acres for the actual site and another 350,000 acres for a buffer zone, would resemble a Strategic Air Command airbase. It would employ around 6,000 persons.

The site can't be located too close to a large city, he explained, because it would be extremely noisy and a buffer zone would be needed between the site and any city.

He said the noise factor and need for a large buffer zone eliminates the entire densely populated East Coast as a location.

Explosion Hits Puget Sound Courthouse

Vashon, Wash. (UPI)—An explosion of unknown origin ripped through a judge's chambers Sunday and the ensuing fire demolished the district courthouse. No one was injured. The structure, which also contained insurance offices was valued at $30,000.

A spokesman for Puget Sound Power and Light said the explosion went off in the chambers and knocked out the main power cable to the community on Vashon Island, located in South Puget Sound.

Telephone service also was severed for several hours and a Seattle radio station, KVI, which has towers on the island, was knocked off the air for about 45 minutes.

The fire's glow was seen by many residents in the Puget Sound region and was especially vivid in Seattle, about 20 miles away.

Chile-Cuba Air Service Begins

Miami (AP)—Airline service between Chile and Cuba began Sunday with the arrival in Havana of a Boeing 707 jetliner belonging to LAN-Chile, the South American country's national airline.

A Radio Havana broadcast monitored here indicated the flight is a newly instituted stopover on LAN-Chile's Santiago-to-Madrid route.

The Santiago-Havana air link is Cuba's second in the Americas. The Cuban airline operates a twice-weekly service to Mexico.

Lone Yachtsman Nears Home Port

London (AP)—Chay Blyth, Britain's lone round-the-world nonstop yachtsman who has been at sea for nine months, radioed Sunday he hopes to be home during the first week of August.

Blyth, 29, has less than 2,000 miles to go.

His last position was given as west of the Azores, 38 degrees 15 minutes north, 37 degrees 30 minutes west.

Passengers Pay To Land Plane

Colombo, Ceylon (AP)—A Royal Jordanian Airways crew passed the hat around to passengers on a flight from Melbourne, Australia, to Amman, Jordan, and collected $351 for airport handling charges.

Colombo authorities refused flight clearance Friday to the Jordanian airliner until a $650 handling charge was paid to Air Ceylon. The aircraft crew came up with $299 among themselves and got the rest by passing the hat among the passengers.

Does More Than Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Infection

Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Pain and Itching in Such Tissues.

When hemorrhoidal tissues swell, become inflamed and infected—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But doctors have found a remarkably successful medication which is so effective that it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues. And it does more. In many cases, it also gives prompt relief for hours from the pain and itching in hemorrhoidal tissues. This medication is obtainable without a prescription under the name—Preparation H®.

Tests by leading doctors on hundreds of patients in New York, Washington, D.C. and at a large medical center verified Preparation H gave similar successful results in many cases. When you consider Preparation H offers so many benefits—it's no wonder millions of sufferers buy it each year to obtain this relief. See if it doesn't help you. There's no other formula like Preparation H. Ointment or suppositories.

Governors Vary On Support Of Revenue Sharing Plans

South Sioux City (UPI) — The vanguard of governors arriving for the 10th annual Midwest Governors Conference expressed varying degrees of support Sunday for the idea of revenue sharing with the federal government.

The central idea of five early arriving governors was that they would like to see a specific proposal on revenue sharing developed and presented to the Congress by the House Ways and Means Committee headed by Rep. Wilbur Mills, D. Ark.

"The governors would like to see some action by the Mills committee on some kind of bill," said Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who is chairman of the National Governors Conference.

The national group, he said at a news conference, "is overwhelmingly in favor of general revenue sharing."

Three of the governors — J. James Exon of Nebraska, Robert D. Ray of Iowa and Richard F. Kneip of South Dakota — said they were unalterably opposed to Mills' revenue sharing plan of bypassing the states and going directly to cities.

All said, however, that they supported the general idea of revenue sharing, and hoped for a quick compromise between Mills and the Nixon administration.

Finance Issues

The revenue sharing issue was one of several dealing with finances which was to come under discussion by the governors during a three-day business meeting opening Monday.

Exon, Ray and Kneip, who form the conference's agricultural committee, were to lead off the Monday session with a discussion of the ailing farm industry and its problems of dwindling population and falling farm prices.

Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas, conference chairman, said the farm problem was one of the major issues facing the Middle West.

Bayh May Appear

The expected presence of presidential candidate at the Midwest conference would not be officially condoned by the conference. It was reported that Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., regarded as a contender for the Democratic nomination, would appear at the meeting Tuesday.

Eight of the governors planning to attend are Democrats and six Republicans.

The list also includes Govs. Richard Ogilvie of Illinois, Edgar Whitcomb of Indiana, Louis Nunn of Kentucky, William Milliken of Michigan, Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, William Guy of North Dakota, John Gilligan of Ohio, David Hall of Oklahoma and Arch Moore of West Virginia.

Dr. Wolfensberger To Leave State Psychiatric Institute

Omaha (AP) — Dr. Wolf P. Wolfensberger, a prime mover in Nebraska's development of services for the mentally retarded, says he will leave next month for a new post in Toronto, Canada.

Dr. Wolfensberger, associate professor at the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute, said he will be a visiting scholar at the Canadian National Institute on Mental Retardation.

The German-born psychologist said he is leaving the institute in Omaha because he differs with director Dr. Merrill Eaton on the role of the institute.

Dr. Wolfensberger said he believes the institute should offer more leadership in the development of community health programs and should seek out the public's advice on institute programs.

Dr. Eaton declined to comment.

Dr. Wolfensberger has been at the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute for seven years.

Beermann's Bullfrogs Stun Crowd By Upsetting John Everroad's Entry

By SAM THORSON

Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Yutan — They arrived from all corners of the state, nerves keyed to fever pitch, heads filled with visions of glory, chests swelling with competitive pride, frogs at the ready. Most had been training for weeks. All knew that only one would emerge the Champ.

After the dust had settled, it took a moment for the stunning outcome to sink in: John E. Everroad, silver-haired dean of Nebraska frog jumpers, had been bested by the brash and boastful Dakota City Kid, Allen Beermann.

Everroad's highly-touted "Nebraska No. 1," a wiry home-bred bullfrog coming off a convincing victory in the Governor's Cup Jump at the Calaveras County Jumping Frog Jubilee at Angels Camp, Calif., proved to be a colossal disappointment. Nebraska No. 1 opened up the Everroad Invitational Jump with a puny five feet in its three allotted jumps.

Heat Disliked

The smart long-shot money was on the stable brought in Sunday morning by Beermann and his cocky office staff, who arrived wearing work-shirts emblazoned "Secretary of State Frogmen." Beermann's entry walked away with all the honors. His top frog, "Jumping J," covered a solid 12'2", nailing down top honors. Two other Beermann amphibians jumped a respectable 10'2" each, earning the second and third prizes.

Beermann's secret? "We just kept 'em cool and fed 'em flies," replied the smug Champ.

Performances by entries in the highly-publicized political grudge match, however, were outdone by a frog spirited in from Oklahoma for the Open-Class Jump. "Dresser Drawer II," owned by 12-year-old David Richard of Wann, unfurled a magnificent 14'9" jump, eclipsing the state mark etched during last year's competition by its predecessor and namesake, "Dresser Drawer I," by a substantial nine inches.

Traffic Mishaps Take Lives Of Three People

By The Associated Press

Traffic mishaps have taken three lives in Nebraska over the weekend.

Louis J. Furlan, 57, of Grayslake, Ill., died Saturday night of injuries suffered when he and his sister-in-law were struck by a truck in North Platte Thursday night.

The two were crossing U. S. 30 from a motel to a restaurant when struck by a pickup driven by Russell E. Gurwell, 24, of North Platte, according to officials.

The sister-in-law, Susi S. Delperena, 63, of Victoria, Mexico, was listed in critical condition at a North Platte hospital Sunday night.

The state patrol said Herman Morton, 62, of Grandfield, Okla., was killed when his westbound pickup truck went out of control and rolled on Nebraska 23 about 6½ miles west of Grant.

State Trooper Dale Hopp of Oakland said Edna Saunoci, 29, of Macy died in the collision of an auto and a truck-tractor on U. S. 77 one mile south of the Rosalie Junction.

He said the victim apparently was driving the car, which was going east on a county road. The southbound truck was driven by Floyd Skou of Albert Lea, Minn. He was hospitalized at Fremont.

Hopp said Skou was carrying a load of meat from the John Morrell plant at Sioux Falls, S. D. to Denver, Colo.

Three passenger in the Saunoci car, all from Macy, were injured, Hopp said. Stanford Blackbird was hospitalized at Sioux City, Iowa, and Charlie Phillips and his wife Edna were taken to a hospital at Winnebago.

Rail, Phone Firms Report No Problems

Omaha (AP) — Spokesmen for the Union Pacific Railroad and the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. said Sunday there had been no unusual developments or problems involving strikes against the firms.

A UP spokesman said supervisors continued the job of clearing freight that was on the road when the strike started Friday.

He said less than half of the freight on the road still was to be delivered.

As of Saturday night, he said, the UP still had about 5,000 cars out over its entire system.

A Northwestern Bell supervisor said there were no major problems with management personnel operating the phone system, but the service probably was "not comparable to normal."

The supervisor said "we feel we are giving good service. We hope the customers are happy with it."

Prowess Proved

Dresser Drawer's performance proved young Richard's prowess as a championship frog trainer in last year's event as no fluke. The Oklahoma pond frog covered the distance with ease, showing no signs of tiring. "We didn't even touch him," Richard said. "We didn't do anything to him."

Richard is a third-year performer. In the first annual Yutan Frog Rodeo two years ago, he competed with a Nebraska frog rented from the local fire department, sponsors of the jump, for 25c. He had no luck whatsoever.

Last year, however, he and his brother Jerry and sister Joyce went hunting frogs on a pond on their uncle's ranch near Broken Bow, Okla. "The frogs around here don't have as long legs," Joyce explained.

The venture paid off, and success was theirs: Dresser Drawer I took the championship. This year's frog replaced the original after the champ escaped into the woods. "He's not exactly the son of Dresser Drawer I," Richard said. "But he came from the same pond." Dresser Drawer II was fed a diet of grasshoppers and turtle food for the last two weeks, he explained.

Richard could put his trophies on the mantelpiece and retired undefeated, but frog-jumping, once it's gotten into the bloodstream, is hard to leave behind. "I'll be back next year," he said.

Winner of the Fire Department Jump was the Wahoo volunteer team, whose "Wahoo No. 2" covered 9'10".

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Down with air conditioning. Such a campaign might well raise the ire of unthinking people. We say "unthinking" because if you think about it in a certain way, it has its good points.

There is no doubt that air conditioning has contributed mightily to the comfort of the American people. That people like it is an obvious conclusion from the fact that more and more homes have air conditioning.

But the National Geographic News Bulletin gives us something else to think about. Discussing dog days, which we are now in the middle of, the Society publication notes that air conditioning gives Americans relief from the heat.

It then says: "Those without air conditioning follow the advice given 2,800 years ago by the Greek poet Hesiod: 'When Sirius perches head and knees, and the body is dried up by reason of the heat, then sit in the shade and drink.'"

Sirius, it is explained, is the brightest visible star, known as the Dog Star from its constellation Canis Major, "the Greater Dog." Greeks and Romans, explains the National Geographic, noted that Sirius rose with the sun at midsummer, the hottest time of the year, and Romans called their period dies caniculares, or dog days.

The dog days bit contains a lot of bunk but you have to grant that Hesiod gave pretty good advice. Whether people take his advice or not these days, it sounds mighty appealing. All of which points up the fact that without air conditioning, we might not get as much done but we might enjoy life more in the process.

Air conditioning is a lot like the telephone. Despite the striking telephone workers, this device continues to both plague and serve us. You almost wish that the big companies would not make such an effort to keep the service going. One sort of likes to think about what life would be like without a telephone around for a week or so, or however long the strike lasts.

Some people have retreats where they can go to get away from the normal routines of their lives. It may be a wilderness spot or a cabin on the lake and it is becoming more and more common for such retreats to be without telephone service.

The beauty of it is that, without a telephone, your daily routine can't catch up with you. You can't be called to discuss some business affair, to deal with a customer or what have you. Whatever it might be that needs your attention simply has to wait until you return.

And amazingly, it waits with little if any real problem. This is all most enjoyable and relaxing at the moment but it is a little sobering to realize that things, even things close to you, go so smoothly in your absence.

Much the same thing is true of air conditioning. We really wouldn't want to do without it but it has made life more demanding. In contrast to Hesiod's advice, when the heat is not unbearable, get off your duffer and get to work.

So, as a result of air conditioning, we have less opportunity to relax and enjoy life and more obligation to keep the old nose to the grindstone. Even the most heartless boss might have a little sympathy for workers slowing down in the midst of a scorching summer day—but not if there is air conditioning to fight the heat.

While you are working away in the heat of the day, even though cool and comfortable, think of the fellow somewhere in the world, denied the pleasure of air conditioning, but heeding the advice of Hesiod to "sit in the shade and drink."

Perhaps it is a hammock in which he lounges, one leg draped lazily over the side, arms back and under his head, eyes closed and dreamy look on his face. Now and then he rises, just enough to sip the cool nectar from a glass he picks from the grass below him.

A cloud floats along in the sky above and the leaves dance lightly with the breeze that is just enough to keep a man cool if he is quiet. Maybe a bird or two sings in the tree or a squirrel busies himself with the task of maintaining his food supply.

You have to admit that it makes you stop and think. Maybe if you knew the rest of the fellow's life, you wouldn't trade him places but you have to wonder just how much we really have the best of him. Maybe now and then we outsmart ourselves, which is sort of what some of the younger generation have been trying to tell us in recent years.

Offensive Product Boycott
Effective Way Of Removal

WASHINGTON — The pre-teen years can be hazardous ones for any child, even if his parents happen to be affluent. Johnny's pajamas are likely to erupt in flame, leaving him badly burned, if they come in contact with a lighted match or stove. And Mary's doll may have sharp pins in its hair or easily removable — and swallowable — eyes.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader asserts that around 3,000 people a year die after their clothing catches fire. "Over 150,000 are injured in the same way. When all fabric fires are included, more than 250,000 people suffer injuries and 4,000 die each year. An unusually high proportion are children and elderly people. More children under the age of five die from fires and explosions than from any other kind of injury."

Toys rarely are lethal, but some are capable of inflicting serious cuts and burns. Edward M. Swartz, an attorney specializing in product liability law, cites numerous examples in a new book: rockets with sharp points, plastic tops that can accidentally explode, cap pistols so loud as to impair hearing, toy electric ovens and irons that get too hot, guns that shoot plastic projectiles at high speed.

The proposed Consumer Product Safety Act of 1971 is designed to prevent dangerous products of all kinds from reaching the market. Sponsored by Warren G. Magnuson, (D-Wash.) chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, the bill would set up a five-member Consumer Product Safety Commission, a consumer safety advocate, and an injury information clearing-house. Persons violating the consumer safety standards laid down by the commission would be liable to both civil and criminal penalties. Laws to promote fabric and toy safety already are on the federal statute books, but neither has been particularly effective. The Flammable Fabrics Act, passed in 1953 and amended in 1967, is still described as overly permissive. The Food and Drug Administration, which is responsible for enforcing the Child Protection and Toy Safety Act of 1969, ordered 39 toys in four categories off the market last December — but it did so only three shopping days before Christmas.

Toys that seem outwardly safe may carry hidden hazards. One example is the Nerf Ball, made of feather-light plastic foam. To all appearances, it is the ideal indoor toy for ram-bunctious youngsters. Consumer Reports found, however, that Nerf Balls "ignited well within the outside time limits specified" by the Toy Safety Act. The manufacturer, Parker Brothers, told Editorial Research Reports that it is now using a new material to make the balls.

And then there is the question, raised by Swartz and others, of "psychologically damaging toys." These include an assemble-it-yourself plastic guillotine, kits containing simulated human organs with painted blood dripping from them, and an imitation hypodermic needle.

Some old standbys could be criticized on similar grounds. To a purist, it might seem that Monopoly encourages money-grubbing and ruthlessness; that GI Joe glorifies war; and that Barbie and company plant the seed of consumeritis in youthful minds. But these are matters of taste, not of legislation. The best way to get rid of offensive toys, or of any other product, is to buy them.

'More — Uh — Bargaining Chips?'

University A Private Club?

An exchange Wednesday night between members of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents and unhappy Omahans who live near the NU at Omaha campus points up once again the urgent need for a change in regental meeting practices.

Much of the discussion at the late evening board meeting was bound up in disagreement over what the board had said or not said when it met with the Omahans behind closed doors three days earlier. Evident from the exchange was the fact that the board had indeed taken some sort of stand on a master plan for UNO expansion—a position which came not in a public meeting, but during one of the informal, closed meetings the board regularly holds prior to its official sessions. The regents claimed the Omaha citizens misunderstood the agreement. Still not satisfied, the UNO neighbors demanded a public meeting on the subject.

Though there may be a point of contention on what the board said it would or it would not do, it is crystal clear that the regents have hog-tied themselves once again by meeting behind closed doors and reaching agreements that ought to come in public sessions. A misunderstanding of what occurs during official meetings can usually be cleared up with a bit of clerical work to check the board's proceedings. But, of course, there are no official proceedings for those closed-door sessions.

That the board took an official stand seems to be clear. Regent Robert Koefoot said at Wednesday's session that the board "went on record Sunday evening," a situation which is obviously impossible since a public body can only go on record when a record is kept—in public meetings open to all interested. The Sunday night meeting was apparently open only to some of those interested, rather than any citizen who wished to attend.

We hope the board will soon tire of all the hassle that stem from what it did or didn't do behind closed doors. A public body ought to be just that—and it should be willing to withstand the scrutiny of the public it serves. Perhaps present practices will change soon, with the recent promise of Chancellor D. B. Varner to study present practices related to meetings and to press relations.

Too Simple To Work?

The intrigues of international affairs can easily leave one bewildered, hanging breathlessly on the words of experts whose stock in trade is the dissection of every little nuance of world diplomacy. This makes it delightfully refreshing to hear the meanings and concepts of foreign policy discussed in the simplicity of commonly understood human reactions and feelings.

This is what President Nixon did when he told the American people that he wanted to make perfectly clear the context in which the world should view his forthcoming visit to the People's Republic of China. This action, he said, "will not be taken at the expense of our old friends. It is not directed against any other nation. We seek friendly relations with all nations. Any nation can be our friend without being any other nation's enemy."

This is the kind of attitude that will ultimately be demanded of the entire world's leadership if the peace we all supposedly want is ever to be secured. Some may say that what the President says and the nation does are two different things but the fact remains that plain old mutual understanding and respect are the only foundations for a lasting peace.

Nations can haggle all they want over the details of technical agreements, over ideological conflicts and over defense strategies but it is common human dignity that will save the day for them. The complexities — the technology, so to speak — of international affairs would take on far more clarity if all nations would approach one another in a better spirit of brotherhood.

It is unfortunate that the world stands in such a position that hardly anyone can extend his hand without someone's thinking he should bite it.

Utility Companies Push Bill For Pollution Right;
Nixon Press Conferences Short Of 'Spontaneous'

WASHINGTON — For more than a year, a backroom battle to keep nuclear and other electric power facilities from polluting our environment has been raging within the White House.

At the heart of these heated discussions has been whether the government should have the right to make sure new plants and power lines don't contaminate our streams, shores and forests.

This right to veto ecology-damaging sites would have prevented such recently publicized environmental disasters as the smoke-choked Four Corners scandal in America's Southwest, where plants are polluting once pure air.

The balding hero of the closed-door White House conversations has been Dave Freeman, a peppery, middle-aged southerner who is President Nixon's expert on energy policy.

Opposing Freeman at these tense conferences has been none other than John Nassikas, the hot-tongued Federal Power chairman. We have already exposed how Nassikas is trying to give away $4 billion of the housewives' money in a Louisiana natural gas rate case.

Now, it's clear that Nassikas is the champion not only of the natural gas industry but the electric power industry.

Nassikas sought for hour after hour in the White House work sessions to block Freeman's attempts to protect the environment. But instead, Freeman began to gather support from other conferees.

The President's Environmental Quality Council delegate supported Freeman and even the Atomic Energy Commission often agreed with him. Nassikas soon found himself alone on the crucial issue. But even after the report was written, Nassikas kept up his lobbying. He quietly submitted a bill of his own, tailored to please the utility giants.

President Nixon, however, backed Freeman and urged a strong government voice in the selection of future electric facilities.

When Nassikas could not prevail for the electric interests in his White House confrontations with Freeman, they took their case to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton whose department would have the lead role under the White House proposals.

Morton met with them privately. Led by the Edison

Electric Institute, they angrily denounced the White House bill's key points. Freeman, although a guest at the Interior meeting, spoke up sharply defending the bill.

Morton asked the lobbyists and officials to give their written views to Assistant Secretary James Smith. They quickly complied and Smith sent a confidential memo to Morton last month.

The Smith memo, while rejecting some of the companies' most outrageous proposals, recommends to Morton that the White House bill be watered down. At this writing, Morton has not decided whether to side with the utility companies.

Footnote: Smith was out of the country. His deputy, Jim Watt, told us that the Smith memo was designed to make the White House bill "more effective" in protecting the environment without injuring needed power development. Freeman and Nassikas declined all comment.

Well, here we go again. Riding out of anonymity after failing to find a brave man among better known politicians comes Paul McCloskey, Marine veteran, Republican, California congressman, presidential candidate. He's gonna challenge the President within his own party . . . that's all.

Not many people have heard of him; not many people take his candidacy very seriously; his own party ignores him, and no one expects him to win.

Sound familiar? Maybe like 1968 when that other fellow, Eugene McCarthy, a relatively obscure senator, rode out from Minnesota to challenge the President within his own party after failing to talk better known Democrats into undertaking the effort themselves.

Of course, McCarthy didn't win, did he? He isn't the President today.

But neither is Lyndon Johnson.

Chances are that McCloskey isn't gonna knock President Nixon out. He might hurt him . . . but even that is harder to do within the Republican party than among the more wide-open Democrats.

And while the most likely alternative in national Democratic politics is a move to the left, the first line GOP alternative is usually to move to the right.

Take 1968. Hubert Humphrey had to fight off McCarthy and George McGovern at Chicago, and Robert Kennedy before that.

Richard Nixon had to fight off Ronald Reagan who, rather than Nelson Rockefeller, was really the first line alternative for GOP delegates.

And if Nixon should step aside in 1972, they'll be looking to the right at Reagan and Agnew, rather than the more moderate face of Paul McCloskey.

Yet, outside the convention, McCloskey could have wider appeal among American voters than did McCarthy. He should relate as well to the young, and his war record should open the minds of a great number of people who could never abide the senator.

McCloskey's major point on the war should test American decency.

Withdrawal of American troops is not enough, he says. Stopping the killing of Americans is not enough.

We must also stop bombing, he says. We must also stop slaughtering Indochinese.

That's where we will test our decency.

Everyone wants to stop killing Americans (some sooner than others not everyone cares about the bombing slaughter of Asian men, women and children.

There's more than a tinge of racism in that—some of it unconscious and unintended.

But given the circumstances of this war, the fact that the United States is not formally at war or under any real danger from the so called "enemy," unlike the conditions operative in World War II, the question must be asked. Would we ravage a white European nation in the same way under the same circumstances? I think we all know the answer. ★ ★ ★

WASHINGTON — It is no longer a question of whether the Nixon administration should insure the continuity of the shaky regime of Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon but whether it can keep Thieu in power. With American support, Thieu can probably come through the charade of the elections in October.

But the signs of his weakness multiply. He seems unable to make the changes that would give his government at least a face-lifting. Instead he sits tight at the center of power structure made up of generals and political operators who are his dependents.

A notorious example of the henchmen on whom he relies is Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzu, commander of II Corps, one of the four command regions. Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., testifying before a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee, identified Dzu as a chief heroin trafficker in Southeast Asia. He said that South Vietnamese officers deal in large quantities of heroin and transport it around South Vietnam in military aircraft and vehicles. Steele claimed that American military authorities gave Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker "hard intelligence" on Dzu's operation.

Two facts give this charge special credence despite Dzu's immediate denial. First, it was Steele who disclosed the high rate of heroin addiction among GIs in Vietnam. And, second, as a former agent in the CIA, he had access to information that might not have been available to others.

Dzu has been for a long time a dubious figure in the military hierarchy that is both controlled by and controls President Thieu. On a visit to his headquarters in Vietnam two years ago, I learned it was no secret that he was held in disregard by members of his staff. Rumors of corruption were rife. Members of his family were said to run a chain of restaurants largely supplied out of American military stores.

Time magazine recently reported a letter sent by 27 South Vietnamese majors and colonels to Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky accusing Dzu of a long list of corrupt practices and falsification of battle reports and casualties. The typical technique, the officers said, is to do badly but to report well. "We wonder whether we are fighting communism or supporting it," they wrote.

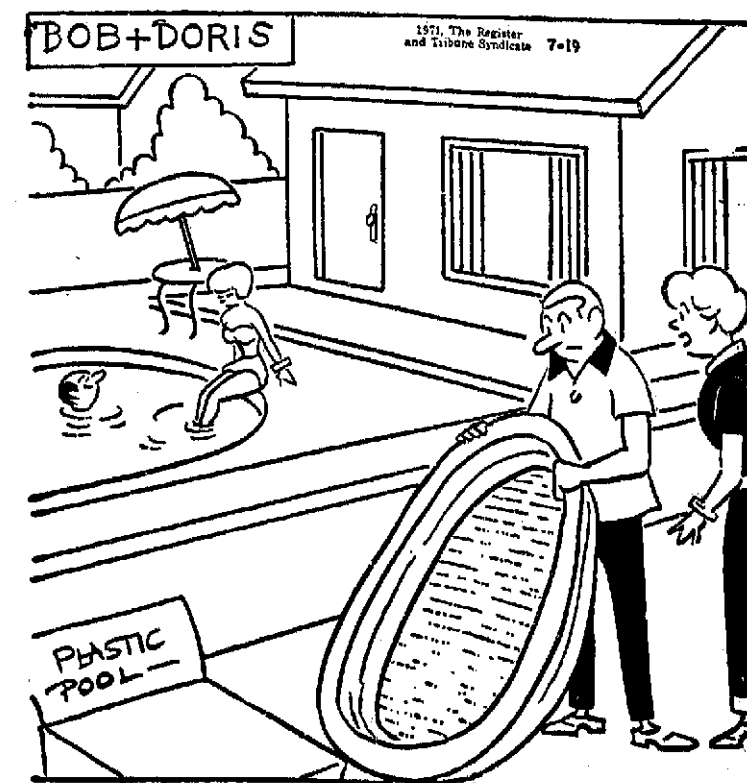

The letter may have been merely a shot in the political campaign that threatens to grow more violent as election day draws near. Ky, who accused the Thieu government in a fierce speech of a plague of military corruption, expressed doubt about the letter's authenticity and indicated he would do nothing about it. Dzu put it down to the work of his enemies in the army.

This may be true and, if so, it is remarkable good news. But in the first six months of this year, 8,200 men turned themselves in under the Vietnam drug amnesty program. The figure for June was 1,500. Since clearly only a minority of heroin users take this step, it indicates a high addiction rate. To keep even a residue of a demoralized army in South Vietnam is to invite new disasters like the drug curse.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Down with air conditioning. Such a campaign might well raise the ire of unthinking people. We say "unthinking" because if you think about it in a certain way, it has its good points.

There is no doubt that air conditioning has contributed mightily to the comfort of the American people. That people like it is an obvious conclusion from the fact that more and more homes have air conditioning.

But the National Geographic News Bulletin gives us something else to think about. Discussing dog days, which we are now in the middle of, the Society publication notes that air conditioning gives Americans relief from the heat.

It then says: "Those without air conditioning follow the advice given 2,800 years ago by the Greek poet Hesiod: 'When Sirius perches head and knees, and the body is dried up by reason of the heat, then sit in the shade and drink.'"

Sirius, it is explained, is the brightest visible star, known as the Dog Star from its constellation Canis Major, "the Greater Dog." Greeks and Romans, explains the National Geographic, noted that Sirius rose with the sun at midsummer, the hottest time of the year, and Romans called their period dies caniculares, or dog days.

The dog days bit contains a lot of bunk but you have to grant that Hesiod gave pretty good advice. Whether people take his advice or not these days, it sounds mighty appealing. All of which points up the fact that without air conditioning, we might not get as much done but we might enjoy life more in the process.

Air conditioning is a lot like the telephone. Despite the striking telephone workers, this device continues to both plague and serve us. You almost wish that the big companies would not make such an effort to keep the service going. One sort of likes to think about what life would be like without a telephone around for a week or so, or however long the strike lasts.

Some people have retreated where they can go to get away from the normal routines of their lives. It may be a wilderness spot or a cabin on the lake and it is becoming more and more common for such retreats to be without telephone service.

The beauty of it is that, without a telephone, your daily routine can't catch up with you. You can't be called to discuss some business affair, to deal with a customer or what have you. Whatever it might be that needs your attention simply has to wait until you return.

And amazingly, it waits with little if any real problem. This is all most enjoyable and relaxing at the moment but it is a little sobering to realize that things, even things close to you, go so smoothly in your absence.

Much the same thing is true of air conditioning. We really wouldn't want to do without it but it has made life more demanding. In contrast to Hesiod's advice, when the heat is not unbearable, get off your duffer and get to work.

So, as a result of air conditioning, we have less opportunity to relax and enjoy life and more obligation to keep the old nose to the grindstone. Even the most heartless boss might have a little sympathy for workers slowing down in the midst of a scorching summer day—but not if there is air conditioning to fight the heat.

While you are working away in the heat of the day, even though cool and comfortable, think of the fellow somewhere in the world, denied the pleasure of air conditioning, but heeding the advice of Hesiod to "sit in the shade and drink."

Perhaps it is a hammock in which he lounges, one leg draped lazily over the side, arms back and under his head, eyes closed and dreamy look on his face. Now and then he rises, just enough to sip the cool nectar from a glass he picks from the grass below him.

A cloud floats along in the sky above and the leaves dance lightly with the breeze that is just enough to keep a man cool if he is quiet. Maybe a bird or two sings in the tree or a squirrel busies himself with the task of maintaining his food supply.

You have to admit that it makes you stop and think. Maybe if you knew the rest of the fellow's life, you wouldn't trade him places but you have to wonder just how much we really have the best of him. Maybe now and then we outsmart ourselves, which is sort of what some of the younger generation have been trying to tell us in recent years.

The traffic in opium and its heroin derivative has for many years been a way of life in Southeast Asia. Opium is the chief cash crop for thousands of farmers in Laos, Burma, Thailand and Vietnam. With the American escalation and the infusion of vast amounts of dollars, a new market opened up that has been assiduously cultivated. There can be little doubt that from the peasants in the poppy fields to high officials, both military and civilian, in the four countries, the enlarged traffic is extremely profitable.

The large and pressing question is what American officialdom in the region can do about this. The least that should be expected is not to resort to a cover-up. Until Congressman Steele came up with his estimate of 20 to 30 per cent of GIs hooked on heroin, the Army has done little or nothing about this curse.

The military response following the disclosures was to order a urinalysis as the first step for every GI about to be shipped out. But, as the GIs quickly learned, it was only necessary to stay off the stuff for about three days for the test to turn up negative. Those customary high military sources inspired a news story that had been feared, perhaps as low as two per cent.

This may be true and, if so, it is remarkable good news. But in the first six months of this year, 8,200 men turned themselves in under the Vietnam drug amnesty program. The figure for June was 1,500. Since clearly only a minority of heroin users take this step, it indicates a high addiction rate. To keep even a residue of a demoralized army in South Vietnam is to invite new disasters like the drug curse.

Sen. Edmund Muskie continues to cling to a two-point lead over President Nixon, 42-40%, in a Harris Survey trial heat on the 1972 presidential race. Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, on a third party-ticket, wins 13% of the vote, polling the same strength he demonstrated in 1968.

The latest Muskie showing takes on added importance, for in the same survey, Sen. Edward Kennedy trailed Nixon by eight points, 36-44%. Thus, a year away from the Democratic National Convention, the Maine senator is running a solid 10 points stronger with the entire electorate than the last of the Kennedy brothers.

Recently, Kennedy has gained ground on Muskie as the first choice for the 1972 nomination among Democrats.

Trend Seen

Here is the trend in the answers to these questions asked of those most likely to vote among a national cross section of 1,614 households.

“Suppose in 1972 for President it were between Nixon, the Republican, Sen. Edmund Muskie for the Democrats, and George Wallace as an Independent. If you had to choose right now, whom would you be for?” and “(If ‘Not Sure’) If you had to say, would you lean toward Nixon the Republican, Muskie the Democrat, or Wallace the Independent?”

of the Muskie vote against Nixon with that of Senator Kennedy is sharp and dramatic:

—Muskie wins three out of four regions—the East by 48-35 percent, the Midwest by 49-41 percent, and the West by 51-43 percent. Kennedy, among the same likely voters, runs behind in the Midwest by 38-47 percent and in the West by 39-51 percent. Both Democrats are ahead in the East, although the Maine Democrat holds a 13-point lead over Mr. Nixon in this region, compared with only 4 percent for Kennedy.

—Contrary to the widely held view that Kennedy would make the strongest run of any Democrat among the now important under-30 age group, Muskie leads among the young by precisely the same eight points that Kennedy shows. But among the pivotal middle age vote, 30 to 49 years of age, Muskie holds a 46-35% edge, while Kennedy falls behind Nixon by a 41-37% margin.

—As dramatic a difference as

Lincoln Meeting

Lincoln will host the three-day “little national” convention of the Nebraska-Iowa Dry Cleaners and Launderers Association, it was decided Sunday by the group’s governing board.

The convention, expected to draw approximately 500 people, will be held at the Raddisson-Cornhusker Hotel in February, according to Dan Maun, executive director of the Nebraska Dry Cleaners and Launderers Association.

any can be seen when voters are looked at by education. Kennedy wins the vote of those who have not gone beyond the eighth grade in their schooling by eight points against Nixon, slightly better than Muskie’s five-point edge among the least educated. However, among the college-educated, Muskie is ahead by a sizable 51-42% margin over Richard Nixon. Kennedy loses the college-educated vote by 54-33 percent. A comparable pattern is evident among the independent-minded $15,000-and-over income group, where Kennedy trails badly by 36-52% against the President, but Muskie leads by 54-41%.

Significantly Muskie captures an even higher percentage of the Catholic vote than Kennedy. Both lead Nixon with this key group: Kennedy by 48-35%, but Muskie by an even larger 50-34%. Similarly, among union members, Kennedy is ahead 43-34%, but Muskie holds a larger 50-32% lead over the President.

In short, Muskie shows a much wider political reach than Sen. Kennedy, an ability to bring in traditional Democrats such as the trade-union and Catholic vote while making deep inroads into the more affluent and growing sectors of the electorate. Most dramatic of all are the suburbs, where Kennedy trails by a sizeable 50-35%, but Muskie runs ahead by 47-42%.

At this juncture, there is little doubt that Sen. Muskie is a much stronger potential Democratic nominee than Sen. Kennedy — by a precise margin of one voter in every ten.

Amonia Kills Two

Morgan City, La. (UPI) — Two men died and three others were recuperating from amonion inhalation suffered while cleaning a fish storage hold in a boat near here. The men who died — John Mack Johnson, 25, of Morgan City and Robert L. Evans, 26, of Fellsville, N.C. — were reportedly working without gas masks. The other three men were overcome when they tried to rescue them.

Vaccination Of Horses Required

Dallas (UPI) — Agriculture Department animal health experts and state veterinarians Sunday ordered mandatory vaccination of all horses in five Southwestern states as part of a program to control a sleeping sickness epidemic.

The action was one taken by veterinarians from Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas and Louisiana and federal officials during a meeting Sunday. The meeting was called to discuss ways to stop the disease before it spreads out of Texas.

“Each state will have to put in a regulation of its own, but all have agree to do it. We need at least 90% of the horses vaccinated if we are to get this thing stopped,” said Dr. Robert E. Omohundro, assistant director of the animal health division of the Agriculture Department in Washington.

The disease — Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis — spread into the United States from Mexico in early June. It began two years ago in South American and has been slowly moving northward since.

Dr. Jack R. Pitcher, assistant USDA veterinarian in charge of fighting the disease in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas, said 820 horses have died so far in Texas and another 1,070 are infected. Dozens of humans have caught the disease, but it takes the form of a mild case of flu in humans.

“The vaccine is not a tried and proven vaccine yet, but it’s all we have and we’re going to have to use it.”

Omohundro said the inoculation program will be used with a program of spraying insecticide to kill the mosquitoes which carry the disease.

“The spraying will be done from Cameron Parish, La., all the way to Brownsville, Tex.,” he said. The area covers about 400 miles.

“I’m optimistic we’ll get this epidemic stopped somewhere,” Omohundro said. “Whether we can stop it in its tracks right here or not I don’t know.”

French Local Governments Assuming Greater Burden

More and more responsibility is being placed on local governments in France, a French mayor and representative in the French parliament said in an interview during his visit to Lincoln.

Pierre Dumas, mayor of the commune of Chambery, said because more and more is being expected from local government, the old tax structure is unsuited to cope with the new situation.

He said that it is necessary to consider redistribution of tasks and resources by the national government.

There are now 37,708 communes in France, according to Mayor Dumas, and some of these do not have sufficient financial means to survive and are merging into larger communes to alleviate the problem.

He indicated that the local financial burden in the welfare areas which is said to be bankrupting local government in the United States is not as great a problem in France since medical expenses are covered by social security for individuals who are working or have been working.

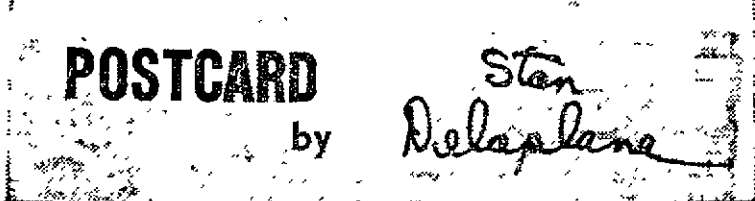

However, he explained, that many old and young people don’t fall into these categories and in these cases they receive some help and support in the form of welfare, the responsibility of which rests on local government.

He said that some larger local governments help the smaller communes to meet the welfare problems.

Similar to the move in the United States, France communes are building senior citizen homes, planning programs for senior citizens and providing low-rent housing structures, Dumas said.

Israel Aids Amin

Jerusalem (UPI) —President Idi Amin of Uganda left for home after two days of talks with Israeli officials in which he agreed to open an embassy in Jerusalem. Government officials said Israel agreed in turn to expand its economic and military aid to the African country, especially to the Ugandan air force.

We drove out of backwood French Canada to old Quebec City. Hot showers! Restaurants! The children glued themselves to the English-speaking Channel 5 on TV. And I got on the telephone to Avis.

“Avis car rentals?”

“Oui, M’sieur.”

I said: “Try harder, Avis. Try English I have had a car accident.”

On the holiday first of July, I backed into another car in little Baie St. Paul where we’ve rented a log chalet.

Angelo Tremblay, head of the Quebec tourist bureau comes from Baie St. Paul. There are 17 pages in the phone book. One whole page of Tremblays.

“The original Tremblay ancestor came from France in the middle of the 1600s,” said Angelo Tremblay. “Now they are all over. In Los Angeles, there are 250 Tremblays!”

There was no one on the streets of Baie St. Paul on the holiday. A spit of rain in the air. Fog over the wide St. Lawrence.

I drove through deserted streets. And at an intersection, the only other car moving came silently behind me. And I backed into him.

He got out and wrote down his name: Jean Luc Tremblay.

You could throw a handful of bird shot into the air and some of it would land on a Tremblay.

I didn’t get his address. Been trying to find him ever since. Telephoning Tremblays. Who button up when I fracture French into “accident” and ask for Jean Luc.

I went over and made out an accident report at the Quebec airport. The Avis man tried so hard, he practically thanked me for having an accident.

The backing didn’t damage the Avis Plymouth station wagon. But I put a derby size dent in his hood. His grill returned to what it was made for: gum wrappers.

I showed the Avis man the unmarked back of my car. He tried harder to think of something nice. He thanked me for that.

We are at the Chateau Frontenac. It’s a magnificent building. Begun in 1880 on the rocky heights above the St. Lawrence, where the palace of the French governors used to be.

Bronze-green Norman spires match those of the antique buildings across the Place d’Armes.

There are excellent restaurants nearby. And horses and carriages go clip-clopping through the streets. Loaded with tourists, a student summer-guide explaining the sights.

It’s warm summer. The highways are full of young hitchhikers. In Quebec City, they get a bed for 50 cents at the youth hostel in the old jail — the Petite Bastille.

As you drive by, hundreds of bearded hippie children sightsee you through the bars.

I went over to the tourist office, across the Place d’Armes: I told Angelo Tremblay I’d banged another Tremblay. I hoped he wouldn’t hold it against me.

He said proudly: “There are hundreds of Tremblays. My wife was a Tremblay before we were married.”

I got the idea he would have been disappointed if I had hit anyone but a Tremblay.

The Avis man delivered a complete insurance report. An envelope to mail it. A stamp to put on it. He gave the children buttons: “Nous faisons plus pour vous satisfaire.” He thanked me again. (Let’s hear it for Avis.)

This railroad strike is going to change your life.

The moment of truth is here. Not just for the railroads. For all of us.

The United Transportation Union eagerly agreed to 42% wage increases recommended by a Presidential Emergency Board. But this union refuses to modernize turn-of-the-century work practices, which the Board urged be done. To avoid such modernization, three railroads will be struck as a threat to the other 67.

How huge is this new wage package?

Two billion dollars more by the end of 3½ years. That’s 1.7 billion dollars more than all U. S. railroad profits are expected to be this year.

So who will pay? Every consumer. For virtually everything you buy depends on low cost rail service at some stage of its growth or manufacture. As freight costs rise, the entire cost of living goes up. The two billion dollars in wage boosts will become many more billions in higher retail prices of everything.

If you doubt this, save today’s newspaper for a year or two in order to compare today’s prices with those in the future.

What does Burlington Northern intend to do about the strike?

First of all, we intend to keep our trains running. Secondly, we intend to put into effect streamlined work rule changes to prove they will provide great enough efficiencies to at least partially meet these UTU wage boosts without increasing your costs.

Not all rail unions oppose modernizing old work rules. We have just made settlements with the Locomotive Engineers, for example. And we will honor these settlements, as well as our merger job protection agreements, even during the course of the UTU strike against the other railroads.

We said the moment of truth is here. It is. If the UTU can pressure a 42% wage hike from the railroads without giving up any of their ancient make-work practices, our nation’s railroads are headed for ruin. And the cost to you will be enormous. And to the nation. And to every worker and taxpayer.

America’s railroads are making a goal line stand on this UTU strike issue.

If we lose, you lose. We all lose.

Lyn Portsche Is Bride Of Gary Blum

At 7:30 o'clock on Saturday evening, July 17, the wedding of Miss Lyn Colette Portsche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex L. Portsche, and Gary R. Blum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blum, took place at the Sheridan Lutheran Church. The Rev. Jack Horner solemnized the ceremony.

The fivesome of attendants included Miss Debra Russell, the maid of honor; bridesmaids Miss Carol Jensen of Malcolm, Miss Julie Peters, Miss Kym Portsche, and bridesmatron Mrs. Harry Daniels of Goehner. Their floor-length frocks of chiffon over taffeta were in alternating shades of apricot and chartreuse, and their costumes were completed with wide-brimmed garden hats.

Edward Blum served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Terry Cosier of Beatrice, Steven Blum, Hal Cummins, Gregory Luft, Gerald Graf and Ken Portsche.

The bride appeared in a gown of sheer organza, accented with Venise lace. The lace, which contoured the yoke and fashioned the high collar of the Empire bodice, was repeated to cuff the long, full sleeves, and to pattern the wide, panel train which gave back interest to the silhouette skirt. A cluster of Venise lace petals, ornamented with pearls, held in place her train-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of talisman roses and miniature white carnations.

Mr. Blum and his bride will reside at 300 So. 26th St., in Lincoln.

The bride is a former student at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. Mr.

Blum, who enters USAF in October, was graduated from the University of Nebraska from where he also received his Master's degree in secondary education. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa.

Afternoon Wedding

The wedding of Miss Lynne Andrews, daughter of Mrs. Gordon Andrews, and the late Mr. Andrews, and Gary E. Hupka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hupka, took place on Saturday afternoon, July 17, at the Blessed Sacrament Church. The 2 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. John Gilsdorf.

Floor-length frocks of orchid chiffon over taffeta designed with long-sleeved bodices, and softly gathered skirts were worn by Miss Jody Andrews, who was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmatrons Mrs. Dennis Miller and Mrs. James Bartunek.

Rick Hupka served his brother as best man, and seating the guests were William Wagner and Marlin Hupka.

A gown of sheer organza and Chantilly lace was chosen by the bride for her wedding. The lace, bordered with lace ruching, banded the high and cuffed the full length gathered sleeves which were patterned with lace and the ruching. Vertical rows of the ruching-bordered lace ornamented the front of the gown from the shoulders to the lace-bordered hemline of the silhouette skirt. Her mantilla veil widely framed with lace extended into a cottillion length train, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies and orchid-toned gypsophelia.

Town Talk

Sometimes people are just lucky — and everything turns out right. Take last Friday, for example. All day long clouds hovered overhead, but by evening they had disappeared and it was perfect weather for a perfect party — the garden barbecue for which Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sands were host and hostess at their home. There was a sort of a special party guest, too — Sen. George McGovern joined the party for a short time.

Someone told us that Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jensen (Karen Sue Amen) arrived a day or so ago to spend a month in Lincoln. As a matter of fact Mr. and Mrs. Jensen are more or less in the role of "baby sitters" while Mrs. Jensen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Amen are vacationing in the Scandinavian countries. Mr. and Mrs. Amen will visit Denmark, Norway — and Sweden where they will spend considerable time. Mrs. Amen, by the way, has an aunt in Halmstead Sweden, as well as other relatives there and in Gothenburg.

From Lincoln Mr. and Mrs. Jensen will go to Charlottesville, Va., where Mr. Jensen, who has completed a tour of duty in the Air Force, will enter Graduate School.

As we said before sometimes people are just lucky. We're told that the sizzle will be out of Nebraska's summer for a day or two — or three. We doubt, however, if Mr. and Mrs. George Peterman had read any weather reports before planning a trip to Lincoln. We also doubt whether it would have bothered them — They're from Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterman (Marilyn Mardis) arrived in Lincoln on Sunday, and will spend a few days here as the guests of Mrs. Peterman's mother, Mrs. H. C. Mardis, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Beachley.

On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Peterman will go to Omaha where they will spend a day or two with Mrs. Peterman's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Hal K. Mardis before taking off next Sunday for home.

We think you may be interested in the fact that there is a sculptor in the Peterman family — He is Mr. and Mrs. Peterman's son-in-law, Stephen Frewin — Look for the name in art galleries the next time you are down New Orleans way.

Now that we have greeted the guests, it's time to roll out the red carpet as a welcome to a newcomer. Her name is Laura Lynne Folsom, who made her world debut on Saturday, July 10. The young lady's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Willard S. Folsom, and her mother is the former Roxie Mann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Mann of Gothenburg. The paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Willard W. Folsom, and there is another special member in Miss Laura Lynne's family — her paternal great grandmother, Mrs. Willard M. Folsom.

MISS KAREN MINTZMYER

Of interest to town and campus circles this morning is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mintzmyer of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Karen, to Ronald L. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Anderson of Davey.

The wedding will take place on Sunday, Aug. 8.

Miss Mintzmyer is a coed at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta.

Mr. Anderson also is attending the University of Nebraska, and is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity.

Opening lead — king of spades.

This remarkable deal occurred in the 1964 national pair championship.

At one table the bidding went as shown (believe it or not), and South became declarer at seven notrump redoubled. West was not frightened at all by North's redouble! He led a spade and South missed his target by seven tricks, going down 4,000 points!

The giant catastrophe was caused in part by West's interference bid of five spades over the Blackwood four notrump. Apparently South based his grand slam venture on the assumption and hope that his partner had both minor suit aces, in which case seven hearts would be ice cold.

to believe his partner would open with a two bid and go to seven with only one ace. Strangely enough, exactly the same contract was reached at another table, except that North became declarer. The bidding went:

South	West	North	East
2♠	3♠	4NT	Pass
6♥	Pass	7NT	Pass
Pass	Dble	Redble

Here North interpreted the six heart bid as showing two aces and avoid, in an unspecified suit. (That is the method used by most Blackwood players in this type of situation.)

Despite the critical misunderstanding, the North-South pair at this table fared considerably better. East thought his partner's double was conventional and forbade a spade lead, so he led the jack of clubs.

As a result, North made the grand slam and scored 2,930 points. This was 6,930 points better than the North-South pair at the previous table had scored!

An Admiral—Nebraska Variety

Mrs. James Titus presents Mrs. Hazel Wolfe (seated) with her commission of admiral — in the Nebraska Navy, of course.

It was just a few weeks ago children were parading in their that bells throughout Lincoln neighborhoods in observance of began ringing at high noon and the birthday of our nation.

Everyone knew the reason for the celebrations, but few realized who or what was behind the merry-making in Lincoln.

Four years ago a local woman single-handedly set out to make the Fourth of July into a real celebration instead of just another day from work —and it worked! Now on the Fourth of July radio and television stations play recordings of bells and church bells and even the carillon at the University of Nebraska ring at high noon — the same time that the Declaration of Independence was signed and the time of the first ringing of the Liberty Bell.

The same woman helped to organize children's block parades which have been so successful the children now begin to plan for the next year's parade early as July 5.

The woman responsible for Lincoln's observances of the Independence Day is Mrs. Hazel Wolfe — and for her endeavors she has been made an Admiral in the Nebraska Navy.

The presentation was made Saturday afternoon, July 17, at the meeting of the Quill Society, an organization of women interested in writing.

But the Admiralship is not the only recognition Mrs. Wolfe has had for her successful attempts — Former Rep. Robert Denney proposed that the Fourth be made a national "Day of Bells and Parades" and he sent Mrs. Wolfe a flag that had been flown above the U.S. Capitol — the same flag that is carried by the oldest participant in the parade on Mrs. Wolfe's block.

Bride-Elect Complimented

The Bride's Book

Announcing plans this morning for an August wedding is Miss Alisanne Rae Schmidt, whose marriage to Mark L. Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. LaVern Ellis, will be an event of Sunday, Aug. 1.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence C. Schmidt, the bride-to-be has named Mrs. Richard Owen of Meridian, Miss., as her matron of honor for the 3 o'clock service, to be solemnized at St. Mark's United Methodist Church. Attending Miss Schmidt as bridesmatrons will be Mrs. Robert Dzerk and Mrs. Tom Eisele, and the bridesmaid will be Miss Marci Ellis, sister of the future bridegroom. Mr. Ellis' sister, Miss Kathi Ellis, will be the flower girl and the chancel candles will be lighted by Miss Julie Ellis, also a sister of the bridegroom-to-be.

Paul Ellis will serve his brother as best man, and the groomsmen will be Fred Key, John Campbell, and Michael Knisely of Beatrice. Seating the guests will be Miss Schmidt's brother, Loren Schmidt, Tom Danek, Tim Shaw, and Bob Rutledge.

The popular soon-to-be bride was presented a miscellaneous shower on Sunday afternoon, July 18, when Mrs. Sam Hesser, Mrs. Clyde Marshall, and Mrs. Millard Morse of Omaha entertained a group of guests at a party held at Union Savings and Loan party room.

Mrs. Floyd Edwards of Dwight was hostess in courtesy to her niece at a brunch held at The Knolls on Saturday morning, July 10.

Mrs. Bill Ray and Miss Marilyn Brauckmueller of Waverly entertained at a miscellaneous shower for Miss Schmidt on Sunday afternoon, June 27, at a party held at the home of Mrs. Ray.

On Monday evening, July 19, Mrs. Neil Callan and Mrs. Dorothy Baker will be hostesses at a miscellaneous shower for the bride-elect at the home of Mrs. Callan.

Since there are a mere two weeks left in this month, it stands to reason that August brides-elect are as busy as the proverbial bee — there are last minute plans, fittings and there are many friends and relatives who are searching for the perfect gifts, both for the wedding and for pre-nuptial courtesies.

One special bride-to-be was entertained at a personal and linen shower on Sunday afternoon, July 18. The guest of honor was Miss Mary Jane Pedersen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Pedersen, who will become the bride of Robert Stephen Garnett, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Garnett of Bellevue, on Saturday, Aug. 14.

The party hostess was Mrs. Richard Paxson, who was

Lyn Portsche Is Bride Of Gary Blum

At 7:30 o'clock on Saturday evening, July 17, the wedding of Miss Lyn Colette Portsche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex L. Portsche, and Gary R. Blum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blum, took place at the Sheridan Lutheran Church. The Rev. Jack Horner solemnized the ceremony.

The fivesome of attendants included Miss Debra Russell, the maid of honor; bridesmaids Miss Carol Jensen of Malcolm, Miss Julie Peters, Miss Kym Portsche, and bridesmatron Mrs. Harry Daniels of Goehner. Their floor-length frocks of chiffon over taffeta were in alternating shades of apricot and chartreuse, and their costumes were completed with wide-brimmed garden hats.

Edward Blum served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Terry Cosier of Beatrice, Steven Blum, Hal Cummins, Gregory Luft, Gerald Graf and Ken Portsche.

The bride appeared in a gown of sheer organza, accented with Venise lace. The lace, which contoured the yoke and fashioned the high collar of the Empire bodice, was repeated to cuff the long, full sleeves, and to pattern the wide, panel train which gave back interest to the silhouette skirt. A cluster of Venise lace petals, ornamented with pearls, held in place her train-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of talisman roses and miniature white carnations.

Mr. Blum and his bride will reside at 300 So. 26th St., in Lincoln.

The bride is a former student at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. Mr.

Blum, who enters USAF in October, was graduated from the University of Nebraska from where he also received his Master's degree in secondary education. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa.

THE LINCOLN STAR, MONDAY, JULY 19

Success In A Man's World

BY LINDA OLIG

Statistical charts, records, and endless forms are just facts of life for Miss Meg Turner, a statistician in the State Agriculture Statistics office.

Another fact of her life that fails to get her down is that she is working in a man's world.

Miss Turner is one of four women statisticians "in the field" — meaning outside of the federal offices in Washington, D.C.

Originally from Oakland, Calif., Miss Turner was the only woman in her senior class at the California State Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo, where she received a degree in agricultural business management. The college, as a matter of fact, is designated by Mr. Webster and his listing of colleges and universities as a men's school.

Her first statistical job was in the California office, where she found the men too protective of her — she was the only woman there, also — but "they accepted me for my ability to perform the duties," she said.

According to Miss Turner,

she can't agree with the women liberationists who cry out "Discrimination!" at every chance. "It's getting out of hand — a woman should be feminine," she commented. On women's lib and personnel training, she said, "Men are aware women can do the job and do it good." And she should know! Miss Turner is responsible for training the statistical surveyors. She hires them, coordinates their projects, and supervises.

But that's not all there is to her job. The office is responsible for crop and livestock estimates. The information collected is available to any one — and important to everyone. The results of the surveys can affect the stock market in futures — and, with knowledge of the estimates, prices can be kept from fluctuating.

Miss Turner revealed that in her estimation one of the most difficult aspects of the occupation is explaining to the farmer why the surveys are good for them. "I want to go out and talk to every one of them, but it is often hard to get the idea through to them."

The woman statistician arrived in Lincoln in February and soon purchased four acres of land near Alvo. "I am not a city girl because I love the freedom of the open air," she admitted.

Miss Turner resides on the acreage with her Keeshond, a Dutch Husky; a cat sent to her from California, and five chickens. And she hopes to eventually replace the part Arabian horses she sold before leaving California.

Her future as a statistician? Miss Turner admitted that "it would be a problem getting ahead in the administrative level since I am a girl!" That leaves two areas open to her — mathematics and foreign service — and she leans toward the overseas work — she has close family members in Africa and Europe.

Her personal future, the 25-year-old revealed, is that her dream is to someday receive a degree in veterinary medicine but not necessarily to practice it; and to be married and have several children running about — but only if it was in the country — "in the open air."

If You Do Things Like This—

If you need to shape-up a little, try this exercise! It will help you slim down your waist and hips. Mrs. Lowman gives you the simple instructions, as well as some helpful figure hints in today's column.

Josephine Lowman

It's that time again, or soon will be everywhere — the autumn season — This brings thoughts of figure defects. Recently I received a letter from one of my readers requesting that I select two of my favorite slimming exercises for the abdomen, the hips and the waist. I have already described the two for the abdomen. Today I bring you two each for the other measurements.

Do not let a few inches too many keep you out of the fashion picture. A protruding abdomen and poor posture both increase the size of your waist. Strengthen your abdominal muscles and pull your tummy in. Also do the following exercises.

1. This is one of the very best. It slims the upper hips as well as the waist. Stand tall with your feet comfortably separated. Bend your trunk to the left, trying to touch your left hand to your left toe. As you bend raise your right arm up by your right ear and keep it there. Raise trunk to upright position and return arms to side. This time bend to the right and touch your right toe. Raise left arm to ear. Raise trunk and return arms to starting position. Continue, alternating.

It is important in this exercise to keep the arm by the ear when you bend. Do not be discouraged if you can only bend one-third or less of the way down when you first start. Do not strain. With practice you will gradually improve.

2. Another easy but effective waist slimmer; again stand with your feet separated. Raise your arms overhead. Keep them in this position as you circle your torso. Make the circles complete and as large as you can. Do this slowly, feeling the pull of your muscles. Circle first in one direction and then in the other.

3. Help for the hipline. Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor at shoulder height, palms toward the floor. You simply cannot beat this exercise for slimming the hips and the thighs. Cross your right leg over your left and touch the floor on the left side of your body. Return right leg to starting position. Cross your left leg over your right and touch floor on the right side of your body. Continue, alternating.

4. More hip aid. Lie on the floor on your back in the same starting position. Bend both knees and place your feet on the floor fairly close to your hips. Raise your heels from the floor and keep them that way as you roll from side to side, touching the floor with your knees at the end of each roll.

The six exercises I have given you will banish the most usual figure defects. Send for your copy of Mrs. Lowman's free leaflet, "Hip Exercises," for more helpful reducing exercises. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request and mail to Josephine Lowman in care of The Lincoln Star.

You Can Wear This

It takes sleek slimmness to wear this lovely gown that bears an Adele Simpson label.

The gown is fashioned of black matte jersey and designed with long sleeves and a decollete neckline.

Completing the costume is a gold and black print blazer of velvet. It adds its own particular charm to a striking ensemble.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations for the excellent advice you gave to "Help me, help my mother in Houston," concerning wearing a hearing aid.

There are some 20 million people in this country with hearing problems. Most of them could and should wear aids.

Some say, "I'll wait until I need one..." If you have even a slight problem, you need one now! It is important to first have your hearing checked by a doctor to see if your loss is one that can be corrected. Many people wait until it is too late to help what might have been a simple medical problem in the beginning. If nothing can be done to help your loss, and if the tests show an aid can help you, then by all means get one.

The woman who feels that wearing an aid will attract attention to the hearing loss, fools only herself, and is usually a pain in the neck to everyone she comes in contact with. There are a dozen ways of letting others know one can't hear. Turning the head to one side, cupping a hand behind the ear, asking people to speak up or repeat things, asking for special seating arrangements in restaurants or other public places, etc. Everyone knows you have a problem, and everyone wonders why you don't do something about it.

Most importantly, people look at our eyes or our mouth when they talk to us, not our ears. Unless of course we make them aware of the fact that we do not hear well. Then they will surely look to see if we have done anything about our problem.

I have worn hearing aids for years so I know the problems of vanity, despair, adjustment, irritation, ... the list goes on and on. But I do not try to hide my aids, and interestingly enough, most people do not notice I wear one and sometimes two, ... even on TV. A dear friend opened my eyes about wearing an aid. Many years ago she told me I was being very selfish by making others cope with what was my problem alone. She was right. I had to do something about my hearing, not expect my family and friends to speak louder than was comfortable for them, or repeat things I had missed, turn the TV up very loud, etc.

If you suspect you have a problem, do something about it. See an audiologist or a doctor or even a reputable hearing aid dealer. Be sure to get all the necessary tests. No reputable dealer will sell you an aid or even try to without first making sure there is no way to correct your loss, and that an aid will really help you. And he'll put it in writing, if he is honest.

Thank you, Abby. Keep saying the words so others can hear.

Sincerely,
NANETTE FABRAY

DEAR ABBY: I am sick and tired of being told that hard of hearing people who refuse to wear a hearing aid are selfish. Abby, I happen to be deaf, and there is no hearing aid in the world that can help me. I have had surgery, too, and many of the world's finest doctors have confirmed the fact that I am totally deaf and nothing can be done to restore any part of my hearing.

I ask you to please print this, in all fairness to others who share my helplessness: We are not selfish ... We are,

DEAR PROFESSOR: Hear!

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you with a problem two years ago. I had a pretty young neighbor who wore short shorts and a halter top to do her housework in. She also went outdoors to hang her laundry in that outfit. I used to feel badly because my husband would always find some excuse to go outside and talk to her.

I asked you what I should do, and you wrote me a personal reply saying, "If that's what your husband likes, buy some short shorts and a halter top and give your neighbor a little competition."

I followed your advice, feeling a bit self-conscious because I have a slightly crippled arm, but I soon got over my shyness when I saw how my husband reacted. He just loved seeing me in that outfit and became so much more demonstrative and affectionate toward me.

Abby, the last two years of our marriage have been the best in all the 10 we've been married. I think you should have put my first letter and your personal reply in the paper. It might have helped other timid wives overcome their shyness and put more happiness into their lives.

GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: It's still not too late. Thanks for writing. Your letter made my day.

DEAR ABBY: Referring to your reply to "TOO SENSITIVE" in which you said it is intended as a compliment, not a put down, when asked, "How come a nice girl like you isn't married?" I think any question along this line is rude and nobody's business. The questioner deserves to be squelched, and my stock reply is, "I didn't have to."

Very truly yours,

Success In A Man's World

BY LINDA OLIG

Statistical charts, records, and endless forms are just facts of life for Miss Meg Turner, a statistician in the State Agriculture Statistics office.

Another fact of her life that fails to get her down is that she is working in a man's world.

Miss Turner is one of four women statisticians "in the field" — meaning outside of the federal offices in Washington, D.C.

Originally from Oakland, Calif., Miss Turner was the only woman in her senior class at the California State Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo, where she received a degree in agricultural business management. The college, as a matter of fact, is designated by Mr. Webster and his listing of colleges and universities as a men's school.

Her first statistical job was in the California office, where she found the men too protective of her — she was the only woman there, also — but "they accepted me for my ability to perform the duties," she said.

According to Miss Turner,

she can't agree with the women liberationists who cry out "Discrimination!" at every chance. "It's getting out of hand — a woman should be feminine," she commented. On women's lib and personnel training, she said, "Men are aware women can do the job and do it good." And she should know! Miss Turner is responsible for training the statistical surveyors. She hires them, coordinates their projects, and supervises.

But that's not all there is to her job. The office is responsible for crop and livestock estimates. The information collected is available to any one — and important to everyone. The results of the surveys can affect the stock market in futures — and, with knowledge of the estimates, prices can be kept from fluctuating.

Miss Turner revealed that in her estimation one of the most difficult aspects of the occupation is explaining to the farmer why the surveys are good for them. "I want to go out and talk to every one of them, but it is often hard to get the idea through to them."

The woman statistician arrived in Lincoln in February and soon purchased four acres of land near Alvo. "I am not a city girl because I love the freedom of the open air," she admitted.

Miss Turner resides on the acreage with her Keeshond, a Dutch Husky; a cat sent to her from California, and five chickens. And she hopes to eventually replace the part Arabian horses she sold before leaving California.

Her future as a statistician? Miss Turner admitted that "it would be a problem getting ahead in the administrative level since I am a girl." That leaves two areas open to her — mathematics and foreign service — and she leans toward the overseas work — she has close family members in Africa and Europe.

Her personal future, the 25-year-old revealed, is that her dream is to someday receive a degree in veterinary medicine but not necessarily to practice it; and to be married and have several children running about — but only if it was in the country — "in the open air."

Abby: the matter of deafness

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations for the excellent advice you gave to "Help me, help my mother in Houston," concerning wearing a hearing aid.

There are some 20 million people in this country with hearing problems. Most of them could and should wear aids.

Some say, "I'll wait until I need one..." If you have even a slight problem, you need one now! It is important to first have your hearing checked by a doctor to see if your loss is one that can be corrected. Many people wait until it is too late to help what might have been a simple medical problem in the beginning. If nothing can be done to help your loss, and if the tests show an aid can help you, then by all means get one.

The woman who feels that wearing an aid will attract attention to the hearing loss, fools only herself, and is usually a pain in the neck to everyone she comes in contact with. If You Do Things Like This—

If you need to shape-up a little, try this exercise! It will help you slim down your waist and hips. Mrs. Lowman gives you the simple instructions, as well as some helpful figure hints in today's column.

Josephine Lowman

It's that time again, or soon will be everywhere — the autumn season — This brings thoughts of figure defects. Recently I received a letter from one of my readers requesting that I select two of my favorite slimming exercises for the abdomen, the hips and the waist. I have already described the two for the abdomen. Today I bring you two each for the other measurements.

Do not let a few inches too many keep you out of the fashion picture. A protruding abdomen and poor posture both increase the size of your waist. Strengthen your abdominal muscles and pull your tummy in. Also do the following exercises.

1. This is one of the very best. It slims the upper hips as well as the waist. Stand tall with your feet comfortably separated. Bend your trunk to the left, trying to touch your left hand to your left toe. As you bend raise your right arm up by your right ear and keep it there. Raise trunk to upright position and return arms to side. This time bend to the right and touch your right toe. Raise left arm to ear. Raise trunk and return arms to starting position. Continue, alternating.

It is important in this exercise to keep the arm by the ear when you bend. Do not be discouraged if you can only bend one-third or less of the way down when you first start. Do not strain. With practice you will gradually improve.

2. Another easy but effective waist slimmer; again stand with your feet separated. Raise your arms overhead. Keep them in this position as you circle your torso. Make the circles complete and as large as you can. Do this slowly, feeling the pull of your muscles. Circle first in one direction and then in the other.

3. Help for the hipline. Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting on the floor at shoulder height, palms toward the floor. You simply cannot beat this exercise for slimming the hips and the thighs. Cross your right leg over your left and touch the floor on the left side of your body. Return right leg to starting position. Cross your left leg over your right and touch floor on the right side of your body. Continue, alternating.

Keep your legs straight, let your hips roll and cling to the floor with your fingertips. Gradually, as your ability increases, work toward touching your opposite hand with your foot each time.

4. More hip aid. Lie on the floor on your back in the same starting position. Bend both knees and place your feet on the floor fairly close to your hips. Raise your heels from the floor and keep them that way as you roll from side to side, touching the floor with your knees at the end of each roll.

The six exercises I have given you will banish the most usual figure defects.

Send for your copy of Mrs. Lowman's free leaflet, "Hip Exercises," for more helpful reducing exercises. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request and mail to Josephine Lowman in care of The Lincoln Star.

You Can Wear This

It takes sleek slimness to wear this lovely gown that bears an Adele Simpson label.

The gown is fashioned of black matte jersey and designed with long sleeves and a decollete neckline.

Completing the costume is a gold and black print blazer of velvet. It adds its own particular charm to a striking ensemble.

Kissinger Says Ill Planned Summit Would Be Disaster

Aboard Air Force One (P)—Presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger, who slipped secretly into Peking in a silk-curtained limousine July 9, said Sunday an ill-prepared U.S.-China summit session would be a disaster.

A meeting between the chiefs of state of the two giant powers has been set for sometime before May —probably weeks earlier.

The man who sealed the final arrangements for a meeting between President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai said both sides have to be assured they can come out of a conference with something, and detailed preliminary work already is under way.

Talking with reporters in the presidential jet en route from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., to Washington, Kissinger said he has no illusions about a friendship but there appears to be a mutual respect.

Nixon's top adviser on national security affairs declined to be quoted directly and asked to clear newsmen's notes. He disclosed nothing particularly new, however.

The presidential aide flew from Pakistan to Peking under cover of a story that he had developed stomach trouble and was going to a resort. Now, he lamented, never again can he have an upset stomach.

Kissinger declined to describe the plane he used or its nationality.

One accompanying Secret Service agent had no idea of the destination until he spotted a Chinese navigator.

The limousine ride behind thin silken curtains was from the Peking airport into the city. The Chinese, Kissinger said, had promised secrecy and delivered it.

He admitted feeling a bit cloak-and-dagger.

Kissinger was loaded with documents for talks with Chou

En-lai that used up about 20 of the 49 hours he was in the capital city.

Two agents were with him, he said, to grab up the papers in the event there was a break in the conversation and he couldn't handle them all.

His one big respite was for a three-hour tour of the Forbidden City, the historic residence of Chinese emperors.

Kissinger said he had time to see only one-fiftieth of it and was impressed especially with an exhibit portraying the sweep of history through the millenniums.

The bachelor presidential aide, who cuts something of a swathe in social circles, noted that Chinese girls have identical haircuts.

He came back from his trip much impressed with Chou. He described the premier as tough from having survived 50 years of the rise of Chinese Communism, but also as a man of subtle humor, well-informed on events in the United States.

He credited the premier with very intelligent questioning. Chou had him at a disadvantage, Kissinger said, in asking him about a speech Nixon gave in Kansas City, Mo., July 7. That was when the president addressed news media executives from 13 midwestern states on foreign and domestic policies.

Kissinger had seen only press reports on the speech. The next morning, he said, he received from Chou a copy in English with a marginal notation: "Please return our only copy."

Apparently, said Kissinger, they have no Xerox machines.

At mealtimes, he said there were always 12 courses with no repetition. He said he could handle wooden chopsticks but not the ivory ones — the food slipped off.

McGovern Tells Youths: Register, Vote

Omaha (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., told about 400 young persons in Elmwood Park here late Sunday they should make the highest order of political business getting the first-time voters registered and to the polls in the 1972 elections.

The rally at Elmwood was the final public appearance during the Democratic presidential hopeful's three-day swing through eastern Nebraska.

McGovern told the crowd, "If you have power and muscle you have something to say about the future of this country."

Directing his attention at the 18-to-20-year-old group, he reminded them that in 1972 there will be about 25 million first-time voters.

There were also some older persons among the crowd. Earlier at Clare United Methodist Church here, the South Dakota senator said in a worship address:

"Surely if the U.S. is able to put together a $30 billion program to put a human being on the moon, we ought to be able to provide the few hundred million dollars that are needed to feed everyone so they will be free from hunger."

Floating Devices Banned At Five State Rec Areas

The State Game Commission reported new regulations banning the use of floatation devices by swimmers at five state recreation areas and two wayside areas are now in effect.

The regulations were adopted by the commission after a public hearing held on them earlier this month.

Specifically banned are inner tubes, air mattresses, inflatable chairs and toys, and anything else that might be used to support a swimmer other than a Coast Guard approved life jacket.

Areas affected by the ban are Branched Oak at Malcolm; Wagon Train, Hickman; Pawnee, Emerald; Louisville and Fremont State Recreation Areas, and the state wayside areas at Gibbon and Grand Island.

Omaha Marker Is Authorized For Malcolm X

Omaha (P) — A historical marker honoring Malcolm X has been authorized by the Nebraska Historical Society.

Marvin Kivett, director of the society, said the birthplace of Malcolm X in Omaha, a suggested site, probably would be ruled out because it is private property.

But he said the marker may be placed in that general area.

Brownville's Arts Day Attracts 7,000 Visitors

By SAM THORSON

Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Brownville — Some 7,000 tourists and art patrons converged on tiny Brownville Sunday, browsing in the bright sunlight over the work of professional and amateur artists from six states.

The event was Brownville's sixth annual Fine Arts Day, sponsored this year for the first time by the newly organized Brownville Fine Arts Association. New highlights included poetry readings by Elkhorn's Sissie Newton, barbershop quartet serenading by Omaha's Pitch-Blenders, and a puppet show to keep the kids occupied, presented by Lee Ridge and her Lincoln Playhouse Puppeteers.

Sixty-four artists presented works in "just about every medium," said Mrs. F. William Karrer of the Fine Arts Association. Prices ranged from a few dollars for smaller prints, painting and pottery to upwards of $2,000 for resident artist Tom Palermerton's larger canvases.

Two seminars, featuring instruction by Palmerton, are sandwiched around the exhibition. So far, Mrs. Karrer said, the annual summer workshops have been exclusively for painters, "but we're beginning to think in terms of photography, music, ballet and writing. Like everything else in Brownville, the seminar started small and is growing."

Typical of the growing number of handicrafts exhibitors were Ken and Betty Christopher, who brought

Agnew Continues To Rely On Tactic Of Tossing Out 'Red Meat' To Press

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

Madrid (P) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, for the third time on his current world trip, has demonstrated that one of the best ways for him to get public attention is by deliberately throwing some "red meat" to the press.

The vice president has said he sometimes does this to attract attention and on Saturday, in an airborne news conference between Kinshasa and Madrid, he did it again with an attack on U.S. black leadership, which he contrasted unfavorably with the strongman leaders of Ethiopia, Kenya and the Congo.

Earlier on the trip, Agnew twice fired off blasts at familiar targets — the media and press publication of the Pentagon Papers — and in doing so drew more attention that he has with his diplomatic efforts so far in eight Asian and African nations.

Mounting Criticism

In both cases, the attacks came at a time when press criticism was mounting on different aspects of his trip.

Agnew's six-day stay in South Korea, where he represented President Nixon at the inaugural of President Chung Hee Park but did little else in the longest one-nation stay of his three foreign trips, produced stories that U.S. and Korean officials were baffled at the reasons for the lengthy visit.

With little notice, Agnew summoned the nine reporters accompanying him on the trip to a Singapore hotel room and, in the course of a rambling explanation of its purposes plus replies to questions, delivered a series of indictments of the news media.

He accused it of giving world leaders a false impression that isolationism will prevail in the United States and said it sometimes fails to give the American people a clear view of what U.S. overseas commitments are. In addition, the vice president predicted it would hand the North Vietnamese "a public relations coup" by overplaying a forthcoming attack in Vietnam as the defeat of Vietnamization.

"Assisting" Hanoi
Such a coup, Agnew said, "is easily achieved because so many of our people in the national media are too ready to assist the North Vietnamese by their overemphasis on what's taking place."

In the following week, Agnew visited Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Ethiopia, and everywhere he went, reporters were asked by local officials why the vice president was avoiding any contract with Asians and Africans other than kings and officials.

Reporters pressed Victor Gold, Agnew's press secretary, on the subject in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and were told: "We're not conducting a diplomatic mission for the benefit of the mass media. We're conducting it for the benefit of the United States' government and the people of the United States."

Another Briefing

Less than a half hour later, the reporters found themselves at a briefing with Agnew. They found out little about his trip — but got a new supply of "red meat."

The world leaders with whom he had met, Agnew said, are "just appalled" by the publication of the Pentagon Papers.

They also are concerned, he went on, by "this wave of retreat from responsibility" indicated by congressional decisions to cut off funds for the supersonic transport and trim the space program.

His most recent blast came Saturday after reporters, pointing out to Gold that their access to Agnew has been more limited than on the two previous foreign trips, asked to talk to him on the long flight from Kinshasa to Madrid.

Kissinger Says Ill Planned Summit Would Be Disaster

Aboard Air Force One (AP) — Presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger, who slipped secretly into Peking in a silk-curtained limousine July 9, said Sunday an ill-prepared U.S.-China summit session would be a disaster.

A meeting between the chiefs of state of the two giant powers has been set for sometime before May — probably weeks earlier.

The man who sealed the final arrangements for a meeting between President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai said both sides have to be assured they can come out of a conference with something, and detailed preliminary work already is under way.

Talking with reporters in the presidential jet en route from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., to Washington, Kissinger said he has no illusions about a friendship but there appears to be a mutual respect.

Nixon's top adviser on national security affairs declined to be quoted directly and asked to clear newsmen's notes. He disclosed nothing particularly new, however.

The presidential aide flew from Pakistan to Peking under cover of a story that he had developed stomach trouble and was going to a resort. Now, he lamented, never again can he have an upset stomach.

Kissinger declined to describe the plane he used or its nationality.

One accompanying Secret Service agent had no idea of the destination until he spotted a Chinese navigator.

The limousine ride behind thin silk curtains was from the Peking airport into the city. The Chinese, Kissinger said, had promised secrecy and delivered it.

He admitted feeling a bit cloak-and-daggers.

Kissinger was loaded with documents for talks with Chou

En-lai that used up about 20 of the 49 hours he was in the capital city.

Two agents were with him, he said, to grab up the papers in the event there was a break in the conversation and he couldn't handle them all.

His one big respite was for a three-hour tour of the Forbidden City, the historic residence of Chinese emperors.

Kissinger said he had time to see only one-fiftieth of it and was impressed especially with an exhibit portraying the sweep of history through the millennium.

The bachelor presidential aide, who cuts something of a swathe in social circles, noted that Chinese girls have identical haircuts.

He came back from his trip much impressed with Chou. He described the premier as tough from having survived 50 years of the rise of Chinese Communism, but also as a man of subtle humor, well-informed on events in the United States.

He credited the premier with very intelligent questioning. Chou had him at a disadvantage, Kissinger said, in asking him about a speech Nixon gave in Kansas City, Mo., July 7. That was when the President addressed news media executives from 13 midwestern states on foreign and domestic policies.

Kissinger had seen only press reports on the speech. The next morning, he said, he received from Chou a copy in English with a marginal notation: "Please return our only copy."

Apparently, said Kissinger, they have no Xerox machines.

At mealtimes, he said there were always 12 courses with no repetition. He said he could handle wooden chopsticks but not the ivory ones — the food slipped off.

McGovern Tells Youths: Register, Vote

Omaha (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., told about 400 young persons in Elmwood Park here late Sunday they should make the highest order of political business getting the first-time voters registered and to the polls in the 1972 elections.

The rally at Elmwood was the final public appearance during the Democratic presidential hopeful's three-day swing through eastern Nebraska.

McGovern told the crowd, "If you have power and muscle you have something to say about the future of this country."

Directing his attention at the 18-to-20-year-old group, he reminded them that in 1972 there will be about 25 million first-time voters.

There were also some older persons among the crowd.

Earlier at Clare United Methodist Church here, the South Dakota senator said in a worship address:

"Surely if the U.S. is able to put together a $30 billion program to put a human being on the moon, we ought to be able to provide the few hundred million dollars that are needed to feed everyone so they will be free from hunger."

Floating Devices Banned At Five State Rec Areas

The State Game Commission reported new regulations banning the use of floatation devices by swimmers at five state recreation areas and two wayside areas are now in effect.

The regulations were adopted by the commission after a public hearing held on them earlier this month.

Specifically banned are inner tubes, air mattresses, inflatable chairs and toys, and anything else that might be used to support a swimmer other than a Coast Guard approved life jacket.

Areas affected by the ban are Branched Oak at Malcolm; Wagon Train, Hickman; Pawnee, Emerald; Louisville and Fremont State Recreation Areas, and the state wayside areas at Gibbon and Grand Island.

Omaha Marker Is Authorized For Malcolm X

Omaha (AP) — A historical marker honoring Malcolm X has been authorized by the Nebraska Historical Society.

Marvin Kivett, director of the society, said the birthplace of Malcolm X in Omaha, a suggested site, probably would be ruled out because it is private property.

But he said the marker may be placed in that general area.

Brownville's Arts Day Attracts 7,000 Visitors

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Brownville — Some 7,000 tourists and art patrons converged on tiny Brownville Sunday, browsing in the bright sunlight over the work of professional and amateur artists from six states.

The event was Brownville's sixth annual Fine Arts Day, sponsored this year for the first time by the newly organized Brownville Fine Arts Association. New highlights included poetry readings by Elkhorn's Sissie Newton, barbershop quartet serenading by Omaha's Pitch-Blenders, and a puppet show to keep the kids occupied, presented by Lee Ridge and her Lincoln Playhouse Puppets.

Sixty-four artists presented works in "just about every medium," said Mrs. F. William Karrer of the Fine Arts Association. Prices ranged from a few dollars for smaller prints, painting and pottery to upwards of $2,000 for resident artist Tom Palermont's larger canvases.

Two seminars, featuring instruction by Palermont, are sandwiched around the exhibition. So far, Mrs. Karrer said, the annual summer workshops have been exclusively for painters, "but we're beginning to think in terms of photography, music, ballet and writing. Like everything else in Brownville, the seminar started small and is growing."

Typical of the growing number of handicrafts exhibitors were Ken and Betty Christopher, who brought ceramics pieces from their Country Pottery near Ashland.

Exhibitors-farthest-from-home honors went to two sisters, one from Alabama, the other from Colorado, who arrived to take part in the seminars and exhibit their work. Mrs. Ruth Garabrant brought some of her oils from Hugo, Colo.; her sister, Mrs. Helen Stukenholtz of Fairhope, Ala., traveled 1,100 miles with a selection from her work in acrylics.

"There were several professionals here this year who haven't been here before," said Mrs. Karrer. "Fine Arts Day is upgrading each year."

"We're looking forward to enough interest for a permanent regional gallery," said Dr. John Alley of Omaha, also of the BFAA.

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

Madrid (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, for the third time on his current world trip, has demonstrated that one of the best ways for him to get public attention is by deliberately throwing some "red meat" to the press.

The vice president has said he sometimes does this to attract attention and on Saturday, in an airborne news conference between Kinshasa and Madrid, he did it again with an attack on U.S. black leadership, which he contrasted unfavorably with the strongman leaders of Ethiopia, Kenya and the Congo.

Earlier on the trip, Agnew twice fired off blasts at familiar targets — the media and press publication of the Pentagon Papers — and in doing so drew more attention that he has with his diplomatic efforts so far in eight Asian and African nations.

Mounting Criticism

In both cases, the attacks came at a time when press criticism was mounting on different aspects of his trip.

Agnew's six-day stay in South Korea, where he represented President Nixon at the inaugural of President Chung Hee Park but did little else in the longest one-nation stay of his three foreign trips, produced stories that U.S. and Korean officials were baffled at the reasons for the lengthy visit.

With little notice, Agnew summoned the nine reporters accompanying him on the trip to a Singapore hotel room and, in the course of a rambling explanation of its purposes plus replies to questions, delivered a series of indictments of the news media.

He accused it of giving world leaders a false impression that isolationism will prevail in the United States and said it sometimes fails to give the American people a clear view of what U.S. overseas commitments are. In addition, the vice president predicted it would hand the North Vietnamese "a public relations coup" by a public relations coming attack in Vietnam as the defeat of Vietnamization.

Assisting Hanoi

Such a coup, Agnew said, "is easily achieved because so many of our people in the national media are too ready to assist the North Vietnamese by their overemphasis on what's taking place."

In Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Ethiopia, and everywhere he went, reporters were asked by local officials why the vice president was avoiding any contract with Asians and Africans other than kings and officials.

Reporters pressed Victor Gold, Agnew's press secretary, on the subject in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and were told: "We're not conducting a diplomatic mission for the benefit of the mass media. We're conducting it for the benefit of the United States' government and the people of the United States."

Another Briefing

Less than a half hour later, the reporters found themselves at a briefing with Agnew. They found out little about his trip — but got a new supply of "red meat."

The world leaders with whom he had met, Agnew said, are "just appalled" by the publication of the Pentagon Papers.

They also are concerned, he went on, by "this wave of retreat from responsibility" indicated by congressional decisions to cut off funds for the supersonic transport and trim the space program.

His most recent blast came Saturday after reporters, pointing out to Gold that their access to Agnew has been more limited than on the two previous foreign trips, asked to talk to him on the long flight from Kinshasa to Madrid.

Kissinger Flew To Peking On A Commercial Airliner

Saigon (AP) — Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger flew from Pakistan to Peking by commercial airliner under an assumed name and with a foreign passport to conceal his secret trip July 9, informants here said Sunday.

In the first report on the mechanics of the trip, the informants said Kissinger and three assistants from the national security staff traveled by Pakistan International Airways to mainland China and returned July 11 on the same airline.

They said German-born Kissinger used a foreign passport, probably German.

Officials at the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., declined to give any details of Kissinger's secret trip that arranged President Nixon's planned visit to Peking.

Informants in Saigon said Kissinger dared not make the trip in a White House staff plane, or a Chinese military plane. They said this would have revealed the mission to the crewmen and also that radar stations along the way would have picked up military planes and become suspicious.

Accompanying Kissinger were John Holdridge, Winston Lord and Richard Snyder.

Kissinger's trip to China was one of the most closely held secrets in U.S. diplomacy.

At the time Kissinger was in Peking conferring with Premier Chou En-lai, it was announced that he was recovering from a stomach indisposition in the mountains of Pakistan.

He cancelled a formal dinner with Pakistani President Agha Mohamed Yahya Khan scheduled for that evening and was reported to have gone to recover at the Nathiagali Hill Station, about 50 miles from Rawalpindi.

He left behind in Pakistan the U.S. Air Force plane assigned to him so that it would be noticed, the informants said.

Officials in Washington feel that only Yahya knew at the time that Kissinger had flown to Peking.

Meanwhile informants in Rawalpindi said Sunday that while Kissinger was in Peking, a stand-in look-alike took part in a motorcade in Nathiagali to reinforce the deception that Kissinger was there.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Price-To-Earnings Ratio Of Growth Stocks Listed

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Popular growth stocks habitually sell at a high price-to-earnings ratio. This reflects the expectation at the market place that profit, as in the past, will expand greater than that of the average Company. Some feel, however, that when the future is overcapitalized, the buyer is yielding the expected benefits to the seller.

Recently the subjoined growth stocks have been selling at 15 times or less estimated current earnings: Firestone, 13 times; First National City Bank of New York, 12; General Foods, 15; Standard Oil of California, 10; Texaco, 11; and Virginia Electric & Power, 12.

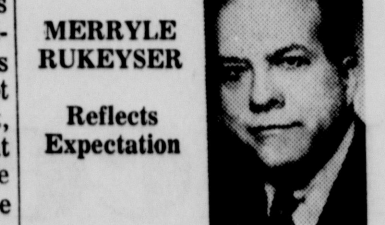

Among medium grade growth stocks selling 15 times current earnings or less are the subjoined: Continental Oil, 11; Crown Cork & Seal, 14; Florida Gas, 14; General Telephone, 14; Gimbel, 15; Southern Company, 13; Southern Natural Gas, 14; Union Oil, 10; Aluminum Company of America, 14; Cities Service, 10; Continental Can, 12; Deere Company, 13; W. R. Grace, 14; Gulf Oil, 11; and Tectron, 13.

Exceeded Sales

A year after the low point reached during the bear cycle in stocks, redemption of mutual fund shares exceeded current sales and the influx of new money. Thus a point which had been deemed academic demonstrates a risk in open-end funds of which the closed-end funds are free.

The standing offer to cash in mutual fund shares at the current market value of the portfolio of fund investments in effect makes such enterprises, like commercial banks, net demand deposit institutions. After the May experience, well managed funds will no doubt be disposed to carry adequate reserves in cash or short term high grade notes to meet such a contingency. Investment managers of funds should not leave themselves in a position whereby they might become forced sellers when security prices are depressed.

The incident underscores the unwisdom of the early performance race of the so-called "go go" funds. Funds should be handled as long term investments — not as vehicles for in and out trading. Of course, holders needing cash can borrow on their funds at banks instead of cashing them in at inopportune times.

The closed end funds, such as Lehman Corporation, Madison, Dominick, Tricontinental and Japan Fund are not subject to redemption, but the shares remain outstanding just like ordinary listed industrial, railroad and public utility stocks. Sometimes these closed-end shares sell at a discount below the market value of the investments in their portfolio and sometimes at a premium.

A study made of the market behavior of Lehman Corporation showed no correlation between how the company was faring and the open market discount or premium. The discounts and premiums reflect supply and demand. Usually these listed closed-end funds are under-published and salesmen are not touting them. Current discounts or premiums are listed Monday in the Wall Street Journal.

Keogh Plans

A neglected field is the sale of Keogh Plans to self employed persons. The law gives professional men and other self employed persons the benefits to tax deferrals previously granted only to employees of corporations with private pension plans.

A recent survey indicated that fewer than 3% of the eligibles have mutual fund Keogh Plans. The average age of applicants is 45 and the mean annual investment is $2,000.

In addition to mutual funds, the Keogh Plan is applicable to insurance, special government bonds and trust funds. Here is an open field for security salesmen to have a heyday.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamp, self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Top Handicapping

Some persons select horses at the State Fairgrounds for fun — Jack Andersen does it for a living.

Andersen and his wife, Donna, have done the handicapping for the Lincoln races for the Blue and Gold Sheet for the past six years trying to beat the national average of selecting winners 33 per cent of the time. But Andersen is trying to get the contract for the two sheets at all Nebraska tracks except Ak-Sar-Ben.

"The first year I got the bid to do it here, I had my heart set on getting the other non-Omaha tracks," Andersen says. "I bid considerably more, but for reasons that were never explained to me, I didn't get it."

Working on a nine-month contract with Nebraska Wesleyan University in the publicity department, Andersen makes use of his three months in the summer.

For the first two, he sells and cashes tickets in Ak-Sar-Ben's mutual department and then handicaps the tip sheets at the Lincoln races.

While the heavy bettors and the infrequent trackgoers use the sheets the most, Andersen says he's the one segment he can't please — the horsemen.

Avoid Horsemen

"You try to stay away from them," he explains. "You can't ever please them — if you put their horse on top, they're mad and if you put their horse on the bottom, they're mad."

After purchasing a Daily Racing Form at the bus depot at 6 a.m. each racing day, Andersen then does most of his handicapping by the 8:30 scratch time. His typist comes in at 9 and by 9:30 the first Blue Sheets are run.

"I get about 90 per cent of my information from the Form and then hope none of my top picks are scratched," he says. His wife handles the Gold Sheet and that is basically done from the overnight entries so the chances are better that the Blue Sheet will have a better percentage than the Gold Sheet.

Andersen enjoyed his second-best day ever on this year's opening day nine-race card at the Fairgrounds when seven of his top choices triumphed. His previous best was selecting seven winners on an eight-race Lincoln program on the last day of the 1967 meeting.

Andersen is still doing a daily graded handicap similar to the one did for the Lincoln races while working for a Lincoln newspaper. Now, his graded handicap for the Ak-Sar-Ben races appears in a Des Moines newspaper.

Owned Frisky Deb

"I guess that's (newspaper selection) where I first got my interest in horse picking," he relates, "I never trained horses but I once owned one."

The filly he owned — Frisky Deb — never ran because of an injury and was later sold to R. W. McNabb and D. E. Kinyoun of Superior. She is the dam of Nova Deb and Rullah Deb, who are both competing at the Fairgrounds.

"We've had a good business at the Fairgrounds and we've been successful with our handicapping," he says, "Let's hope it continues."

Derby Title Captured By Marple

Kevin Marple, 13, is Lincoln's 1971 Soap Box Derby champion. Marple, the A champion, defeated Gary Smith, winner in the B bracket, two straight in the best-2-of-3 clashes between bracket winners.

Marple will compete in the World Soap Box Derby, Aug. 14, in Akron, Ohio, with some 260 boys from all over the world.

The local king had to win four Class A races before facing Smith in the last two contests.

Marple was sponsored by Gateway Bank, the winning sponsor for the last two years. Fred Heftner was the 1970 champion.

Other trophy winners in special categories were Greg Tebo, consolation champion; Mark Durham, best construction; Steve Fralin, best design; Bill Kanser, best finish; Rita Cline, best upholstery; and Terry Cooper, best brakes.

Pan-African Meet Seminar In Self For Blacks

... TRACK EVENT PRODUCES HIGH QUALITY EFFORTS AMID SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY

The New York Times
By Neil Amdur

Durham, N.C. — Bouncy Moore could have bypassed the Pan Africa-United States Track and Field Meet this past weekend. He had won a national collegiate long jump title, the money and competition were more attractive in Europe, and Southern crowds could never match the psychological fervor of Eugene, Ore., where jumping and jogging is a way of life.

But bouncy, a junior at the University of Oregon, is a black athlete who, like other members of his race, has become curious about his social identity and cultural heritage.

"I was really excited about competing here," he said Sunday. "I guess you could trace it to the background. I wanted to compete against Africa."

Bouncy's ancestors came from Uganda. He knows this, he said because of a medical disorder that originated in Uganda more than a century ago.

"I have a loose pelvis that causes my intestines to tie up," he went on, pointing to a six-inch scar on his stomach, the aftermath of intestinal surgery. "The first place they traced this to was in Uganda in 1847."

The Pan Africa-United States track meet was a magnificent technical exhibition that reaffirmed the quality of international competition that will descend on Munich next summer for the 1972 Olympic Games.

The meet also became an exciting field trip in black studies, a significant social experience that may have taught black athletes from both continents more about each other than they could have learned from a semester of classroom lectures.

The atmosphere inside Wallace Wade Stadium during both days reflected the motivated mood of the athletes. The haunting, rhythmic beat of bongo drums provided a dramatic contrast to the strident sounds of military brass bands. Signs ("Right On! Brother Keino" and "Nous Sommes Freres et Soeurs") appeared in English, French and Swahili for the benefit of African competitors. A handmade scoreboard offered its own analysis of the team competition: Africans 150, Whites 74.

The meet produced large, enthusiastic crowds and few displays of racial tension or antagonism. Jim Green, an American sprinter, and Tommie Turner, a quarter-miler, walked out of a restaurant one night when the waitress shunned them for white customers.

In general, however, local and state officials seemed intent on convincing the visiting dignitaries and athletes that Southern hospitality no longer was predicted on separate, but equal terms.

Moore, who won the long jump with a leap of 26 feet 1/4 inch, roomed with Abeyade Cole, a hurdler from Nigeria.

"A lot of the African athletes thought we didn't like them," Moore said. "They didn't know we felt the same way about our heritage and culture as they do."

"There's kind of a mysterious attachment to black Africans," added Darwin Bond, a promising American quartermiler. "The American black athlete tends to stereotype the black African athlete in action, culture and speech. In some respects, they're more conservative than we are. But we're not that far apart as people."

Stereotypes have haunted the black athlete, even in track and field, the first sport to open its competitive doors. Much of the speculation and suspicion is wrapped around general physiological theory and philosophical conjecture that attempts to rationalize the success, or lack of it, by black athletes.

"Blacks are great sprinters," so it goes, "But did you ever see a great black miler? They won't pay the price."

Harry Edwards, a former athlete and a black educator active in black social issues, believes the basis for any analysis of the black athlete must begin with his culture. John Smith, the world record holder at 440 yards and a double winner in the 200 and 400 meters against the Africans, agrees.

"Everything is white-oriented," said Smith, a junior at UCLA, who hopes to pursue law school after the Olympics. "You feel lost except on the track."

It distresses Smith that many people continue to maintain misconceptions about the black track athlete.

"That's why this meet meant more to me than the Russian meet or one in Europe," Smith added with a sense of pride in his firm, confident tones. "It was just like it is around the neighborhood: easy and free."

When Doug Trites was playing golf for Norfolk High School he would beat Rick Schultz from Omaha Westside in their individual clashes.

But Sunday at Holmes Park Schultz had the upper hand in winning the seventh annual Governor's Cup Golf Sweepstakes with a one-over-par 180 for 45 holes. Trites finished in a logjam for second at 184.

Three-time winner Charlie Borner, Jr., Steve Belizer, Dan Bahansky and John McCune also tied for second.

"Doug could beat me in high school but he's been away from the game several years while I haven't," Schultz said. "But I thought he still played well considering how long he hasn't played."

Schultz, who is on the University of Nebraska's golf team, said he is a par-playing golfer.

"I usually don't birdie many holes but on the other hand I don't bogey many," he explained. "I just try to play a consistent game hoping it's good enough to win and this time it was."

"The course played hard and the wind did bother some players," he noted. "But after I got a three-stroke lead on the last nine holes I just tried to par every hole, knowing if anyone was going to catch me, they'd have to birdie every hole I parred."

Frank Rose of Topeka, Kan., who finished in a tie for seventh, said he couldn't birdie enough holes to pressure Schultz.

"The first hole on the last nine ruined my chances," Rose said. "I hit a tree and still got my par but considered it as good as a birdie."

"After that I could've closed one or two strokes but it wouldn't have been enough." The former Fairbury native and ex-Husker standout also said he felt tired and had to scramble most of the time.

Borner said he wasn't satisfied with his game either day but hopes to improve before defending his state title in two weeks.

"My driving isn't bad but my iron shots need some work and my putting needs a lot of work," the North Platte resident said. "I just need to sharpen up my game."

Trites said he'd be back at the state meet and should play better.

"I'm not used to the competition but I think I'll play better at state, Trites noted. "I've improved, though, since I finished in a tie for 12th at the Tournament of Champions at Grand Island."

The Norfolk native, who also is a University of Nebraska student but not on the Husker golf team, said he hit the ball well Sunday but couldn't make any long putts. "I think the longest putt I made all day was a 12-footer on No. 7," he said.

Defending tournament champion Craig Waugh dropped out after 18 holes Sunday and was well off the pace at the time.

Schultz, who has at least one year of eligibility and maybe two left at NU, said he plans to rest a day or two before practicing again.

"I defend my Men's City title next weekend and will enter the state meet the weekend after that," the Omahan said. "This is my biggest win but I've been practicing hard the last two years and it's paying off."

Crampton Snips Trevino's Win String

... BID FOR THIRD STRAIGHT TITLE ENDS IN WESTERN OPEN

Chicago (AP) — Australia's Bruce Crampton interrupted Lee Trevino's victory string — at least briefly — firing an even-par 71 to win the $30,000 first prize in the Western Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

Trevino, unprecedented winner of the United States, Canadian and British Open championships in a four-week stretch, was never a factor as he sought to make the Western his third consecutive title.

Trevino managed his best round of the tournament in the bright warm sunshine Sunday, a one-under-par 70, and finished far back in the field at 291.

The 35-year-old Crampton, veteran of 15 years on the American tour, finished with a 279 total, five under par on the surprisingly tough, 6,749-yard Olympia Field Country Club course.

Crampton's glow of victory could be short-lived however.

"What I'd really like to do now is win next week," said Trevino, pointing toward the Westchester Classic, golf's richest event this year with a total purse of $250,000. Crampton is the defending champion in that tournament.

The curly-haired Crampton, admittedly lured to this country by the rich purses on the American circuit, broke out of a tie for the top spot with consecutive birdies on the seventh and eighth and was alone in front the rest of the way.

He had to do some scrambling on the back nine, but finished two strokes ahead of big Bobby Nichols, the man with whom he was tied starting the final round.

Nichols, a former PGA champ, had a 73 for 281 as most of the potential challengers backed off in the final round pressure.

Doane Gridders 10th In Scoring Defense

New York — Doane College finished 10th in the nation in scoring defense in the National Collegiate Sports Service's five-year rankings.

The Doane Tigers allowed 10.4 points per game while compiling a 38-41 record with Wittenberg, Ohio the leader only allowing 7.8 points per game. No other state or area college ranked in the top 20 teams.

were veteran Tommy Aaron and young Jerry Heard, each with 71s Sunday. Dick Lotz had a 74 and finished fifth at 283 while Bert Greene was alone in sixth at 285 after a closing 74, three over par.

The victory was Crampton's 10th on the American swing, marked the fourth consecutive year he has won at least once and the $30,000 first place check pushed his earnings to just over $85,000 for the season.

"If you're meant to win on a particular week, you'll win. If you're not supposed to win, there's nothing you can do about it," Crampton has said repeatedly on earlier occasions.

His back nine seemed to prove it. He had every opportunity to blow it, hitting the fairway only once. But he made only a single bogey coming home, saving par time and again with brilliant shots from behind trees and out of traps.

—WALKER, KEKICH HURL ONE-HIT GEMS—

Pittsburgh Sweeps Dodgers; Streak Now At 11 Straight

By Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates swept a doubleheader from the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday to run their winning streak to 11 games, longest in the major leagues this season.

The Bucs took the opener 3-2 and the second 7-1 on a one-hitter by southpaw Luke Walker. Walker had a no-hitter until Joe Ferguson homered leading off the ninth.

A triple by Gene Alley led to the Pirates' triumph in the ninth inning of the first game. Minutes later, with the bases loaded, Gene Cline bounced to second baseman Jim Lefebvre whose throw home was too late to catch Alley with the winning run.

A two-run triple by Vic Davallilo in the third inning gave Walker all the runs he needed as the Pirates remained unbeaten in five games since the All-Star break. They are rolling along at a .778 clip with 21 victories in 27 games, including their 11 in a row.

Mike Kekich also pitched a one-hitter for the New York Yankees against the Chicago White Sox as the New Yorkers took both ends of a twin bill, 3-2 and 6-1.

The only hit off Kekich also was a home run, by Mike Andrews in the fifth of the second game. The Yankees won the opener with three runs in the ninth. Bobby Murcer singled home the tying two runs and scored the winner on Ron Swoboda's single.

St. Louis beat the New York Mets 8-5, and the Chicago Cubs downed Montreal 8-4. Baltimore thumped Oakland 7-3, Washington shaded Minnesota 3-2 and Milwaukee tripped Boston 5-4 in other games.

San Francisco and Atlanta split a doubleheader as did Philadelphia and Houston. Cincinnati took San Diego 3-0 in a 5 1/2-inning game cut short by rain. The second game of the scheduled doubleheader was postponed.

Dick Dietz's 12th inning homer gave San Francisco a 5-4 first-game victory over Atlanta. The Braves took the nightcap 4-2 despite Willie Mays' two-run homer for the Giants, the 643rd of his career.

Willie Montanez' first-inning RBI single and Ken Reynolds' four-hitter gave the Phillies a 1-0 squeaker over Houston. The Astros took the nightcap 10-7.

Brooks Robinson's grand slam home run highlighted a seven-run fifth inning that powered the Orioles past the A's.

The Cardinals exploded for six runs in the seventh, featured by Joe Torre's three-run double, to beat the Mets. Strong relief pitching by Ray Newman helped the Cubs overcome the Expos. He retired the last 15 batters in a row.

Lou Piniella's three-run homer in the first inning got Kansas City off and running to a 8-2 romp over Detroit in the first game of a doubleheader.

The Royals made it a sweep with a 10-inning victory over the Tigers as Gail Hopkins' single scored Ed Kirkpatrick who had reached first on a force-out bunt and gone to third on Cookie Rojas' single.

In a West Coast twilighter, the California Angels stunned the Cleveland Indians as Tony Gonzales singled and Ken McMullen belted a two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth.

Top Handicapping

Some persons select horses at the State Fairgrounds for fun — Jack Andersen does it for a living.

Andersen and his wife, Donna, have done the handicapping for the Lincoln races for the Blue and Gold Sheet for the past six years trying to beat the national average of selecting winners 33 per cent of the time. But Andersen is trying to get the contract for the two sheets at all Nebraska tracks except Ak-Sar-Ben.

"The first year I got the bid to do it here, I had my heart set on getting the other non-Omaha tracks," Andersen says. "I bid considerably more, but for reasons that were never explained to me, I didn't get it.

Working on a nine-month contract with Nebraska Wesleyan University in the publicity department, Andersen makes use of his three months in the summer.

For the first two, he sells and cashes tickets in Ak-Sar-Ben's mutual department and then handicaps the tip sheets at the Lincoln races.

While the heavy bettors and the infrequent trackgoers use the sheets the most, Andersen says he avoids the one segment he can't please — the horsemen.

Avoid Horsemen

"You try to stay away from them," he explains. "You can't ever please them — if you put their horse on top, they're mad and if you put their horse on the bottom, they're mad."

After purchasing a Daily Racing Form at the bus depot at 6 a.m. each racing day, Andersen then does most of his handicapping by the 8:30 scratch time. His typist comes in at 9 and by 9:30 the first Blue Sheets are run.

"I get about 90 per cent of my information from the Form and then hope none of my top picks are scratched," he says.

His wife handles the Gold Sheet and that is basically done from the overnight entries so the chances are better that the Blue Sheet will have a better percentage than the Gold Sheet.

Andersen enjoyed his second-best day ever on this year's opening day nine-race card at the Fairgrounds when seven of his top choices triumphed. His previous best was selecting seven winners on an eight-race Lincoln program on the last day of the 1967 meeting.

Andersen is still doing a daily graded handicap similar to the one did for the Lincoln races while working for a Lincoln newspaper. Now, his graded handicap for the Ak-Sar-Ben races appears in a Des Moines newspaper.

Owned Frisky Deb

"I guess that's (newspaper selection) where I first got my interest in horse picking," he relates. "I never trained horses but I once owned one."

The filly he owned — Frisky Deb — never ran because of an injury and was later sold to R. W. McNabb and D. E. Kinoun of Superior. She is the dam of Nova Deb and Rullah Deb, who are both competing at the Fairgrounds.

"We've had a good business at the Fairgrounds and we've been successful with our handicapping," he says. "Let's hope it continues."

Derby Title Captured By Marple

Kevin Marple, 13, is Lincoln's 1971 Soap Box Derby champion. Marple, the A champion, defeated Gary Smith, winner in the B bracket, two straight in the best-of-3 clashes between bracket winners.

Marple will compete in the World Soap Box Derby, Aug. 14, in Akron, Ohio, with some 260 boys from all over the world.

The local king had to win four Class A races before facing Smith in the last two contests.

Marple was sponsored by Gateway Bank, the winning sponsor for the last two years. Fred Hefer was the 1970 champion.

Pan-African Meet Seminar In Self For Blacks

... TRACK EVENT PRODUCES HIGH QUALITY EFFORTS AMID SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY

The New York Times

By Neil Amdur

Durham, N.C. — Bouncy Moore could have bypassed the Pan Africa-United States Track and Field Meet this past weekend. He had won a national collegiate long jump title, the money and competition were more attractive in Europe, and Southern crowds could never match the psychological fervor of Eugene, Ore., where jumping and jogging is a way of life.

But bouncy, a junior at the University of Oregon, is a black athlete who, like other members of his race, has become curious about his social identity and cultural heritage.

"I was really excited about competing here," he said Sunday. "I guess you could trace it to the background. I wanted to compete against Africa."

Bouncy's ancestors came from Uganda. He knows this, he said because of a medical disorder that originated in Uganda more than a century ago.

"I have a loose pelvis that causes my intestines to tie up," he went on, pointing to a six-inch scar on his stomach, the aftermath of intestinal surgery. "The first place they traced this to was in Uganda in 1847."

The Pan Africa-United States track meet was a magnificent technical exhibition that reaffirmed the quality of international competition that will descend on Munich next summer for the 1972 Olympic Games.

The meet also became an exciting field trip in black studies, a significant social experience that may have taught black athletes from both continents more about each other than they could have learned from a semester of classroom lectures.

The atmosphere inside Wallace Wade Stadium during both days reflected the motivated mood of the athletes. The haunting, rhythmic beat of bongo drums provided a dramatic contrast to the strident sounds of military brass bands. Signs ("Right On! Brother Keino") and "Nous Sommes Freres et Soeurs") appeared in English, French and Swahili for the benefit of African competitors. A handmade scoreboard offered its own analysis of the team competition: Africans 150, Whites 74.

The meet produced large, enthusiastic crowds and few displays of racial tension or antagonism. Jim Green, an American sprinter, and Tommie Turner, a quarter-miler, walked out of a restaurant one night when the waitress shunned them for white customers.

In general, however, local and state officials seemed intent on convincing the visiting dignitaries and athletes that Southern hospitality no longer was predicted on separate, but equal terms.

Moore, who won the long jump with a leap of 26 feet 1/4 inch, roomed with Abeyade Cole, a hurdler from Nigeria.

"A lot of the African athletes thought we didn't like them," Moore said. "They didn't know we felt the same way about our heritage and culture as they do."

"There's kind of a mysterious attachment to black Africans," added Darwin Bond, a promising American quartermiler. "The American black athlete tends to stereotype the black African athlete in action, culture and speech. In some respects, they're more conservative than we are. But we're not that far apart as people."

Stereotypes have haunted the black athlete, even in track and field, the first sport to open its competitive doors. Much of the speculation and suspicion is wrapped around general physiological theory and philosophical conjecture that attempts to rationalize the success, or lack of it, by black athletes.

"Blacks are great sprinters," so it goes. "But did you ever see a great black miler? They won't pay the price."

Harry Edwards, a former athlete and a black educator active in black social issues, believes the basis for any analysis of the black athlete must begin with his culture. John Smith, the world record holder at 440 yards and a double winner in the 200 and 400 meters against the Africans, agrees.

"Everything is white-oriented," said Smith, a junior at UCLA, who hopes to pursue law school after the Olympics. "You feel lost except on the track."

It distresses Smith that many people continue to maintain misconceptions about the black track athlete.

"That's why this meet meant more to me than the Russian meet or one in Europe," Smith added with a sense of pride in his firm, confident tones. "It was just like it is around the neighborhood: easy and free."

GOVERNOR'S CUP TO SCHULTZ

Omahan Beats Prep Nemesis

Schultz, who is on the University of Nebraska's golf team, said he is a par-playing golfer.

"I usually don't birdie many holes but on the other hand I don't bogey many," he explained. "I just try to play a constant game hoping it's good enough to win and this time it was."

Rosewall Bombards Riessen

Washington (AP) — Ken Rosewall, 36-year-old Australian, captured the $50,000 Washington Star International tennis tournament Sunday with a 6-2, 7-5, 6-1 victory over Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill.

Rosewall played nearly flawlessly in winning the best-of-five sets to take the $10,000 first prize. Riessen got $5,000 as runner-up.

Rosewall lost service only twice in the three sets.

His steady clay court game intimidated and frustrated the 29-year-old Riessen, who lost the service touch he had Saturday when he defeated top-seeded Wimbledon champion John Newcombe of Australia.

Riessen missed 35 first serves. Rosewall, who is known for his soft serve, had six aces in the match.

"I guess he had a little bit of a letdown after playing Newcombe," Rosewall said after the match. "He made some big shots against John. But then maybe he prefers to play against John rather than me."

After a 30-minute pause, Riessen teamed with Tom Okker of The Netherlands to beat an all-Australian team of Bob Carmichael and Ray Ruffels, 6-3, 6-2 for the doubles championship.

... BID FOR THIRD STRAIGHT TITLE ENDS IN WESTERN OPEN

Chicago (AP) — Australia's Bruce Crampton interrupted Lee Trevino's victory string — at least briefly — firing an even-par 71 to win the $30,000 first prize in the Western Open Golf Tournament Sunday.

Trevino, unprecedented winner of the United States, Canadian and British Open championships in a four-week stretch, was never a factor as he sought to make the Western his third consecutive title.

Trevino managed his best round of the tournament in the bright warm sunshine Sunday, a one-under-par 70, and finished far back in the field at 291.

The 35-year-old Crampton, veteran of 15 years on the American tour, finished with a 279 total, five under par on the surprisingly tough, 6,749-yard Olympia Field Country Club course.

Crampton's glow of victory could be short-lived however.

"What I'd really like to do now is win next week," said Trevino, pointing toward the Westchester Classic, golf's richest event this year with a total purse of $250,000. Crampton is the defending champion in that tournament.

The curly-haired Crampton, admittedly lured to this country by the rich purses on the American circuit, broke out of a tie for the top spot with consecutive birdies on the seventh and eighth and was alone in front the rest of the way.

He had to do some scrambling on the back nine, but finished two strokes ahead of big Bobby Nichols, the man with whom he was tied starting the final round.

Nichols, a former PGA champ, had a 73 for 281 as most of the potential challengers backed off in the final round pressure.

Tied for the third spot at 282

Doane Gridders 10th In Scoring Defense

New York — Doane College finished 10th in the nation in scoring defense in the National Collegiate Sports Service's five-year rankings.

The Doane Tigers allowed 10.4 points per game while compiling a 38-4-1 record with Wittenberg, Ohio the leader only allowing 7.8 points per game. No other state or area college ranked in the top 20 teams.

were veteran Tommy Aaron and young Jerry Heard, each with 71s Sunday. Dick Lotz had a 74 and finished fifth at 283 while Bert Greene was alone in sixth at 285 after a closing 74, three over par.

The victory was Crampton's 10th on the American swing, marked the fourth consecutive year he has won at least once and the $30,000 first place check pushed his earnings to just over $85,000 for the season.

"If you're meant to win on a particular week, you'll win. If you're not supposed to win, there's nothing you can do about it," Crampton has said repeatedly on earlier occasions.

His back nine seemed to prove it. He had every opportunity to blow it, hitting the fairway only once. But he made only a single bogey coming home, saving par time and again with brilliant shots from behind trees and out of traps.

And, with none of the others able to mount a charge, the gallery of 19,800 watched

Pirates' Ellis Charges Some Baseballs Differ

'SIZE, SLICKNESS VARY SIGNIFICANTLY'

Pittsburgh (AP) — Pitcher Dock Ellis of the Pittsburgh Pirates says some baseballs used in the National League are slicker and bigger than they should be.

Empire Nick Colosi, who worked behind the plate Saturday when Ellis won his 15th game of the season, partially agreed.

"A lot of the balls are too big," Ellis said Sunday. "And it affects me more than some pitchers because my hands are so small."

"The leather on some balls is so smooth and slick it doesn't help when they rub it up."

Major league baseballs are required to be no smaller than 9 inches in circumference and no larger than 9 1/4 inches. They must weigh between 5 and 5 1/4 ounces.

Colosi said there has been a problem all season with the texture.

"There's a difference in the horsehide," said Colosi. "Some are much more shiny. Some ball players think they are smaller or larger because they are slicker, but that isn't true. You just can't grip them as well and it affects a pitcher like Ellis. Especially his curve ball."

"Those balls are expensive — they cost about $3.50 each — and you don't just want to throw them out."

"But yesterday (Saturday) I told both pitchers they could just throw the ball out if they didn't like it."

"The ball slips for me," said Ellis, the National League's starting and losing pitcher in the recent All-Star game. "I have trouble with hanging curve balls when I throw them."

"But the balls have been like that since I've been in the league. Usually if you want a new ball you have to throw it in the dirt," he said.

Public Links Champ Seeking Sponsor

Phoenix, Ariz. (AP) — Fred Haney may not look for a pro golf sponsor after winning the U.S. Public Links championship Saturday.

"I've never won anything big before," said Haney, of Forest Grove, Ore. "I needed a big win to help find a sponsor."

Haney, a 1970 graduate of the University of Oregon where he was captain of the golf team, would like a chance to qualify for the PGA tour later this year.

"I haven't been working since I graduated," he said. "I've just been working on my golf game — not just playing, but practicing and hitting balls."

His practice paid off.

Haney, 22, scored a two-under-par 70 on the difficult 6,956-yard Papago Golf Course to beat Robert Blomberg, 26, of Alameda, Calif., by five strokes.

The two went into the final day deadlocked at 220, four over par. But Blomberg lost his last real chance to win when he carded a double-bogey on the 12th hole.

Haney also had trouble on the 12th, hitting his tee shot into a mesquite bush. He chipped out to the edge of the green and settled for a bogey. He then birdied the next two holes to virtually tie the victory.

Blomberg finished the round with a 75.

Tied for third, at 297, were Kenny Rucker, Spring, Tex.; Archie Dadian, South Milwaukee, Wis.; Gary Balliet, Rochester, Mich.; and Tom Olson, Phoenix, Ariz.

Soccer's Pele Calls It Quits

Rio De Janeiro (AP) — Pele, known as the Black Pearl and heralded as the greatest of all soccer players, ended his career with the Brazilian national team Sunday before an emotional, highly-partisan crowd and an international television audience.

He played the first half of his team's match against Yugoslavia, then broke into tears as hundreds of admirers mobbed him.

After a short stay in the referee's tunnel, the man who scored 1,086 career goals trotted around the field to the beat of his nation's anthem and "Obrigado Pele" (Thank you, Pele), which is a national hit.

Tears still running down his cheeks, Pele stripped off his shirt and twirled it in the air as he jogged around Maracana Field in front of a record crowd of 130,000.

Pele watched the second half from the official box as Brazil came back from a 1-0 deficit for a 2-2 tie.

"It is all too overwhelming," Pele told newsmen, his voice choked with emotion. "I had tried to imagine what this would be like, but it surpassed anything I could think."

Soccer fans throughout the world paid tribute to the athlete who completed his 110th appearance with Brazil's national team. But he's not gone forever. He will continue to play, with his professional club, Santos.

Officials canceled the bull-fights Sunday in Seville, Spain, so fans could watch Pele's farewell on television.

In London, the Daily Mirror described Pele as "the greatest footballer the world has ever known." Pele is unique, irreplaceable.

Selection of the Yugoslav team for Pele's final game was considered a great honor for that country, officials said in Belgrade. A dozen Yugoslav sports writers accompanied their team to Rio.

The game started slowly with Pele getting the ball only a few times as teammates attempted to place him within scoring position. Pele attempted a shot late in the first half but it was blocked.

Pele made three more scoring tries in the final moments of the first frame but could not push across a goal.

Tiger Retires From Boxing

Lagos, Nigeria (AP) — Dick Tiger, former world middleweight and light-heavyweight boxing champion, announced his retirement Sunday.

Tiger made the announcement at Ikeja Airport upon his arrival from the United States where he had lived since 1968.

The 39-year-old boxer said he was quitting because of his age and an increased emphasis on heavyweight bouts. He said fights in his weight were infrequent and difficult to line up.

Tiger said he is seeking a post as a boxing trainer or coach in Nigeria.

Geese Blind Applications Due Sept. 7

The State Game Commission says applications from goose hunters for space at the Plattsburgh Waterfowl Management Area this fall should be submitted by Sept. 7.

The management area is located in Cass County, adjacent to the Missouri and Platte Rivers and is a fall stopping off spot for migrating geese, primarily snows and blues.

Applications for 1971 blind reservations may be obtained through the commission, and only one application will be allowed per hunter for the drawing.

The expected dates for this year's season are Oct. 15 to Dec. 15. The commission noted, however, Federal guidelines have not been received so that the actual dates could be set.

The lucky hunters receiving a reservation will have use of a blind for a full day for himself and as many as three guests. The area, however, will be closed to hunters each Wednesday for maintenance work and for tours.

The commission suggested the best chances of getting a blind reservation would result if the hunter requested "any open date" on his application.

Boxing Twinbill To Be Televised At Playboy Club

By Associated Press

A heavyweight doubleheader featuring Jerry Quarry, which will be televised from the Playboy Club in Lake Geneva, Wis., highlights a sparse week in boxing.

The twin bill, which will be home telecast live by the Century Teleports Network Saturday night, will pit the veteran Quarry against Tony Doyle and Ernie Terrell against Roberto Davila in scheduled 10-rounders.

The card will be televised from 8 p.m.-10 p.m., CDT.

Pirates' Ellis Charges Some Baseballs Differ

'...SIZE, SLICKNESS VARY SIGNIFICANTLY'

Pittsburgh (AP) — Pitcher Dock Ellis of the Pittsburgh Pirates says some baseballs used in the National League are slicker and bigger than they should be.

Umpire Nick Colosi, who worked behind the plate Saturday when Ellis won his 15th game of the season, partially agreed.

"A lot of the balls are too big," Ellis said Sunday. "And it affects me more than some pitchers because my hands are so small."

"The leather on some balls is so smooth and slick it doesn't help when they rub it up."

Major league baseballs are required to be no smaller than 9 inches in circumference and no larger than 9 1/4 inches. They must weigh between 5 and 5 1/4 ounces.

Colosi said there has been a problem all season with the texture.

"There's a difference in the horsehide," said Colosi. "Some are much more shiny. Some ball players think they are smaller or larger because they are slicker, but that isn't true. You just can't grip them as well and it affects a pitcher like Ellis. Especially his curve ball."

"Those balls are expensive — they cost about $3.50 each — and you don't just want to throw them out."

"But yesterday (Saturday) I told both pitchers they could just throw the ball out if they didn't like it."

"The ball slips for me," said Ellis, the National League's starting and losing pitcher in the recent All-Star game. "I have trouble with hanging curve balls when I throw them."

"But the balls have been like that since I've been in the league. Usually if you want a new ball you have to throw it in the dirt," he said.

Entries Accepted For Girl's Golf

Omaha — Entries are now being accepted for the third annual Nebraska Junior Girl's State Golf Tournament, to be held Aug. 3-6, at the Field Club of Omaha.

Entries close July 30 for the event, open to girls who have not reached their 18th birthday by August 3.

The junior tournament, formerly held in conjunction with the Women's State Tournament, is in its third year as a separate tournament. This is the first time it has been held in Omaha; last year it was held in Lincoln, and the first year at the Fremont Country Club.

The tournament schedule calls for a practice round, Aug. 2, and an 18-hole qualifying round, Aug. 3 (medal play). The last three days of the tourney will consist of match play in flights of eight. There will be consolation in all full flights.

Entry information is available at golf courses throughout the state. Entries should be forwarded to Mrs. R. T. Burgess, 5801 Manderson Street, Omaha, 68104.

Tiger Retires From Boxing

Lagos, Nigeria (AP) — Dick Tiger, former world middleweight and light-heavyweight boxing champion, announced his retirement Sunday.

Tiger made the announcement at Ikeja Airport upon his arrival from the United States where he had lived since 1968.

The 39-year-old boxer said he was quitting because of his age and an increased emphasis on heavyweight bouts. He said fights in his weight were infrequent and difficult to line up.

Tiger said he is seeking a post as a boxing trainer or coach in Nigeria.

Sweney Captures A Feature Race

Jack Sweney of Lincoln rolled to his first A feature victory of the season at Midwest Speedway Sunday night.

Sweney outduelled Joe Wade, also of Lincoln, who has held the lead in the early going. Both won heat races, Sweney taking the first and Wade the second.

Tiger said he is seeking a post as a boxing trainer or coach in Nigeria.

He was world middleweight champion in 1962-63 and light heavyweight king in 1966-68.

Ewing Top Gun In Club Shoot

Don Ewing of Onawa, Iowa, fired winning scores in both the Class A 16-yard and high overall competition Sunday in a registered shoot sponsored by the Lincoln Gun Club.

B. E. Morrissey of Omaha captured the Class A double with a 48x50.

Lu Liang Huan Wins French Open Crown

Biarritz, France (AP) — Lu Liang Huan of Formosa, the surprise runner-up to Lee Trevino in the British Open won the French Open golf championship Sunday.

Vicente Fernandez and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina tied for second place.

Lu scored a 66 on the final round for a 72-hole total of 262. Fernandez posted a final round 62 to tie de Vicenzo at 164.

The commission suggested the best chances of getting a blind reservation would result if the hunter requested "any open date" on his application.

Nixon Said Planning To Meet Soviets Too

Washington (AP) — Administration officials say they are confident President Nixon is thinking of balancing his coming visit to Peking by meeting with leaders of the Soviet Union.

The occasion for such a summit encounter, in Moscow or some other European capital, could be in their view an American-Soviet first stage agreement on the limitation of strategic arms.

But plainly a parallel purpose would be to dispel any Soviet impression that a normalization of Washington-Peking relations would take place at Moscow's expense.

The informants, who insisted on anonymity, stressed they have no evidence that Nixon has set about preparing for a meeting with the Russians.

They said they know the President wants to visit Russia — but probably not before, or as an extension to his journey to Peking.

"But we are very optimistic that, within the next eight months or so, there may well be a breakthrough in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks," one official said. "If agreement does emerge there is no doubt that the President would want to sign it."

American and Soviet negotiators engaged in SALT at Helsinki at this time are focusing on a first stage agreement that would:

—bind the two countries to build no new antiballistic missile systems, which are tremendously costly.

—rule out the construction of any new offensive nuclear weapons bases and nuclear missile-carrying submarines.

Informants said this would amount essentially to a Washington-Moscow undertaking to halt the nuclear arms race.

"If it were to come off," one informant said, "it would open the way to the next phase involving actual measures of nuclear weapons reductions."

Initial impressions of some administration officials with long diplomatic experience are that Nixon's coming visit to Peking will have disturbed the Soviet leadership.

For quite a while Soviet propaganda organs have, on and off, accused their Chinese Communist rivals of cozying up to the Americans at the expense of fellow socialists. The Chinese have leveled the same sort of charge against the Russians, citing such things as SALT, which they have portrayed as a dialogue designed to perpetuate American-Soviet nuclear mastery of the world.

For his part Nixon has from time to time explicitly underlined the aim of his administration is not to play Peking and Moscow against each other.

For that reason alone, informants said, it may well become an active issue as to whether he should soon take time out to meet with Russian leaders. Such a meeting plainly would require cool and careful preparation because the President would certainly be at pains to offend neither Communist side.

Over and above the sort of factor, the informants said, another consideration that would weigh with Nixon is the need to insure freedom of action for the United States.

Mother Says She Warned Son Of Mines

Ashers Fork, Ky. (AP) — As rescuers worked Sunday to recover the last of three young men killed in a remote mountain coal mine roof fall, the mother of one of the victims said she warned her son against working in the mine.

"I told him he'd get killed in the mine," said Mrs. Mae Jones. "He wouldn't listen. He said he had to work somewhere and the mines are the only jobs around here."

Oscar Saylor, Mrs. Jones' son by a former marriage, had been working at the small Hilmar Coal Co. in eastern Kentucky less than two days when he was killed in the collapse on Friday. Saylor, who would have been 20 next month and two other young miners were crushed by tons of earth and rock.

It was estimated that 100 tons of the roof fell in an area where six miners were working.

Three survived but Frankie Gibson, 21, of Horse Creek, and Ernest Harris, 26, of Brightshade, were killed with Saylor. They were loading coal when the roof fell. Harris, like Saylor, was in his second day on the job. Gibson had been there three days.

By late Sunday, only Saylor's body had not been recovered from the crumpled shaft.

"It looked like a good mine. It was timbered good and boarded good," said T. J. Hollin, one of the survivors who is recovering in Lexington hospital. The others were less seriously injured.

Mother Says She Warned Son Of Mines

Ashers Fork, Ky. (AP) — As rescuers worked Sunday to recover the last of three young men killed in a remote mountain coal mine roof fall, the mother of one of the victims said she warned her son against working in the mine.

"I told him he'd get killed in the mine," said Mrs. Mae Jones. "He wouldn't listen. He said he had to work somewhere and the mines are the only jobs around here."

Oscar Saylor, Mrs. Jones' son by a former marriage, had been working at the small Hilmar Coal Co. in eastern Kentucky less than two days when he was killed in the collapse on Friday.

Saylor, who would have been 20 next month and two other young miners were crushed by tons of earth and rock.

It was estimated that 100 tons of the roof fell in an area where six miners were working.

Three survived but Frankie Gibson, 21, of Horse Creek, and Ernest Harris, 26, of Brightshade, were killed with Saylor. They were loading coal when the roof fell. Harris, like Saylor, was in his second day on the job. Gibson had been there three days.

By late Sunday, only Saylor's body had not been recovered from the crumpled shaft.

"It looked like a good mine. It was timbered good and boarded good," said T. J. Hollin, one of the survivors who is recovering in Lexington hospital. The others were less seriously injured.

Execs To Hear Miller

Spencer S. Miller, associate warden for programming, will present a program on the "Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex" at the Monday noon meeting of the Executive Club at the Cornhusker Hotel.

I JUST KNOW YOUR LIVE-OFF-THE-LAND PROJECT WILL WORK. POSIE? NOW LET'S START WITH A TOUR OF THE FARM FOR YOUR FRIENDS.
THIS IS IT, PETERSON? THE MOMENT OF TRUTH, THE ULTIMATE SACRIFICE!
IN THE NAME OF ECOLOGY, FOR THE LOVE OF THE GOOD EARTH...
I HEREBY GIVE UP MY TRANSISTOR EARPLUG AND ALL!
ALREADY YOUR PROJECT IS BENEFITTING THE WORLD!

MARY WORTH
by Ken Ernst

COME ON, DARLING! I DIDN'T THINK YOU'D TAKE IT THAT WAY!
THE IDEA OF TWO SENIOR CITIZENS CREATING THEIR WAY TO THE ALTAR DOESN'T APPEAL TO ME!
ALL I'M ASKING IS THAT YOU GIVE ME TIME TO... TO FIND MYSELF AS AN ARTIST, BEFORE...
YOU'VE LISTENED TO TOO MANY OF DR. CUTLER'S LECTURES, CHRIS!
IT WAS NICE KNOWING YOU!... THOUGH I NEVER REALLY DID, I GUESS, TILL NOW!

RIP KIRBY

WHO ARE YOU WAVING AT, RIP?
MY MAN, DESMOND, SHERMAN. INCREDIBLE CHAP, ABSOLUTELY INDISPENSABLE TO ME. WONDER WHO THE GIRL IS?
HOPE I CAN SNEAK IN THE SIDE ENTRANCE, DESMOND. I MAY HAVE A GREAT FUTURE AS A STAR, BUT RIGHT NOW I NEED THIS JOB HELPING AT THE PARTY.
BELINDA BITTERS, THE HOUSEKEEPER HERE, IS AN OLD FIRE-EATER, GINNY. BUT DON'T WORRY. WE'LL OUTWIT HER...
AHA, HERE COMES THAT EXTRA MAID NOW. I'VE A MIND TO FIRE HER ON THE SPOT!!

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
